FOR NEXT GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA,

ADJT. GEN. D. H. HASTINGS,

Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

BOULANGER was knocked out by the French elections.

IOWA has an ice cave which makes ice all the year around.

MARY ANDERSON, the actress, is said to be in a private insane asylum.

IF New York wants the 1892 exposition she should quickly plank down the cool cash.

THE Princess Louise having placed a Fife to her lips, everybody will hope that only notes of harmony may be evoked from the contact.

WHILE majesty, divested of its appendages, becomes "a jest," it is hardly probable that the Princess Louise, in surrendering her royal prerogatives, to marry Earl Fife, intended to perpetrate a joke.

LEWIS BROS. & Co., New York merchants, made an assignment last week. Their assets exceed their liabilities about $1,000,000. The figures are immense—assets $5,000,000; liabilities, $4,000,000.

PRINCE BISMARCK'S salary as Chancellor of the German empire is only about $18,000 a year. He is also entitled to occupy an official residence free of rent, though, and a great many brewers send him free beer.

HURRAH for the Sultan of Turkey! He sent $900 for the Johnstown sufferers. Although, in view of the debt laden condition of his country, we doubt whether he was right in doing so, because even a Sultan should be just before he is generous.

THE Financial Chronicle estimates that there are now in Europe at least 100,000 American travelers, and that they will spend on an average $1000. This would dump $100,000,000 into the European pauper lap and create a feeling of respect for our glorious Republic in foreign lands.

COL. ELLIOTT F. SHEPPARD, of the New York Mail and Express, is being urged for appointment as Minister to Russia. Should the appointment go that way it ought to receive the unanimous approval of the people in the flood devasted regions of this State, for whose relief the Colonel was one of the earliest and most liberal contributors

THE opinion of Surgeon-General Hamilton, that the Southwest will escape the yellow fever pestilence this year, is extremely gratifying. Still, it will be well for both the citizens and the health officials in Jacksonville and other Southwestern towns to remember that watchfulness and vigilance of the most unremitting sort will be needed to insure safety from this dreaded scourge.

IT is proposed in the North Dakota Constitutional Convention that the Supreme Court Judges shall be obliged to give their opinion on important questions of law when requested by the Governor, Senate or House of Representatives. There are provisions somewhat akin to this in the Constitution of several of the older States, and it ought to be in all of them.

IT is quite evident that recent reports of the failure of the Minnesota and Dakota wheat crops were sent out for speculative purposes. Later reports show that the shortage is not as great as reported. Indeed it is now claimed that the aggregate crop in that region will be from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels greater than last year. People want to take these reported crop failures with many degrees of allowance.

THE latest achievement of the British shipbuilders is an ironclad of 12,000 tons, or about twice the displacement of our heaviest American cruisers, which developed the remarkable speed of between 17 and 18 knots per hour. This vessel, the Trafalgar, proves that a great ironclad need not necessarily be slow. But the important question here arises, how many days can she travel at moderate speed without recoaling?

PRICE REDUCED TO MEET THE TIMES.

Owing to the fact that we have an important campaign coming on, important to all republicans and others who desire to see the best county government and the cause of temperance, law and order firmly maintained, in order to get the REPUBLICAN, the exponent of these glorious principles, into the hands of all the people, we have decided to reduce the subscription to a popular price that shall place it within the reach of all. We have this fall to elect three court officers, the most important of any county officials in the performance of those duties that bear directly upon the faithful execution of the law, a Prothonotary who is clerk of the court, a District Attorney who is the prosecuting officer, a Judge who sits on the trial of cases. In the election just past our county has decided by over nineteen hundred majority that we desire temperance to prevail amongus, that we want the good order and careful regard for law which follows the faithful execution of our temperance statutes; that if we cannot obtain stronger temperance legislation we want the faithful execution of such laws as we have. The BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN, while it has always been a strong advocate of the noble principals of the grand old party, while it has urged temperance men to stop with us and not waste their votes in a third party movement which can accomplish no good, has ever been the firm, consistent friend of every good movement to advocate the cause of temperance and good government. The people have now their oportunity. They have just the officers to elect who can bring effective work to bear upon the cause, they have at heart. Will the voters come to the rescue again to bring about a result that will cause gladness in so many homes throughout the length and bredth of our county. We trust you will and the first step will be to take the REPUBLICAN and we will keep you posted as the good work goes on.

For these reasons, on and after August 1, 1889., we have decided to offer the REPUBLICAN at the popular price of $1.50, and to those who pay their subscriptions in advance, we offer the Philadelphia Weekly Press as a premium—the two papers for the low price of one dollar and fifty cents. There is none so destitute that he cannot afford to take hold of an offer like this. If there is, we invite that man to come and see us; we want to shake the hand of the poorest man in the world.

GOV. FITZ HUGH LEE of Virginia, expresses great confidence in the ability of the Democrats to carry the State in November, notwithstanding the signing of the treaty of peace in the Republican party. But as the Democrats could only carry it by 1,500 majority last year, at a time when they were well organized, and when the Republicans were carrying on a family quarrel, it is not easy to see the grounds on which Governor Lee bases his confidence. The truth is that he and the other Democratic leaders have been disappointed and alarmed by the disposition of the Republican leaders to come together, and they know that if they are obliged to confront a united Republican party this year the chances will be against them. At least this is the logic of the present situation when viewed in connection with the figures of the election of 1888, and Governor Lee probably understands it as well as anybody.

UNDER the Liquor License bill reported to the Rhode Island Legislature it is proposed to fix wholesale fees at from $500 to $1000, and retail licenses at from $220 to $400. In this Commonwealth experience has shown that a higher rate than any of these might be exacted if it be intended to make the amount of the fee, and not the licensing power, the controlling factor of regulation. It would be quite possible to double the license fees charged in many of the States enjoying High License laws without unduly interfering with either the poor man's beer or the howling swell's champagne cocktail.

A MULTITUDE of Christian people in the United States will be glad to know that the report which stated that the fearless American missionary Mrs. Heron, was under sentence of death for preaching Christianity in Corea, was entirely without foundation. High praise is due to our Department of State for the immediate and energetic measures which it took to ascertain if there was any truth in the report of Mrs. Heron's peril. It is gratifying to know that we now have an administration that it is at once alert and resolute in protecting the rights, liberties and lives of American citizens in foreign lands.

IDAHO'S DANGER.

The Mormon question is troubling the Idaho Constitutional Convention. There are a large number of Mormons in the territory. To disfranchise them seems a harsh and un-American procedure. To admit them to an equality of rights with the rest of the people is to incur the risk that they may increase sufficiently to become the controlling element and make Idaho a Mormon state with polygamy entrenched behind the bulwarks of state sovereignty.

The Mormons of Utah, according to all accounts, have long entertained the idea of immigrating to a jurisdiction beyond the reach of the Edmunds act and other legislation hostile to polygamy. Mexico has been canvassed, but the Catholics of this country do not hold out any welcome to polygamist colonists. No other territory of the United States could protect their pet institution any better than Utah, They have tried living under a state government with a majority of the population opposed to it, and they are not disposed to repeat the experiment. They might hope to get control of Nevada if they could manage to live there, but its sterile alkali soil is not inviting. Idaho is quite as near to them and can support an agricultural population even better than Utah. There are several thousand Mormons already there, and if admitted to the Union with Mormons full-pledged voters the Mormon population of Utah would have the strongest motive for transferring itself across the line to Idaho and assuming the control of the new state.

This is a serious danger, and the Gentile population of Idaho should establish adequate safeguards against it in beginning, even at the cost of seeming to depart from the wholesome American rule of universal toleration of opinion. In reality it is not Mormon opinion that is objected to, but Mormon practice, which is contrary to the common law and moral law, and should be contrary to the constitution and statue law of the new state of Idaho.

WRITING on the Conemaugh dam failure, and on the failure of several reservoirs, Sir Robert Rawlinson concludes a letter to the London Times as follows: "And now for the lesson to be learned. Excessive floods may not occur annually, but at rare intervals. In England rivers occasionally rise some 22 feet or 23 feet vertical in flood; in Scotland and Wales some 30 feet or 35 feet in great spates doing great damage within the range of the flooded areas. In South Africa rivers rise 70 feet vertical, and in parts of Australia 120 feet, a small and almost invisible stream in dry weather becoming a devastating torrent during the heavy rains. The rivers flowing down the Conemaugh Valley in America from the mountains above will be subject to similar excesses. The great rivers and the great lakes of North America and Canada have, however, capacity to equalize the effect of storms, and so to prevent such excesses as now and then take place over areas of less extent, and which will inevitably be repeated if similar mistakes are made, such building towns, villages and works in narrow valleys below wide mountain areas and large artificial reservoirs. There may be a very wide interval in the excesses of Nature, but there is ever the contingency, nay, certainty, of a repetition, and man cannot alter it."

THERE has been a violent discussion in Parliament concerning the donation of money to the Princess Louise on the occasion of her marriage to the Earl of Fife. Mr. Labouchere led the opposition to it, Mr. Gladstone being among those who favored the donation, but not taking a very prominent part in the discussion. But the donation was carried by an overwhelming majority. The Queen is rich and some people think that, as she is able to do so, she should provide for her children and grandchildren, but the gentlemen in Parliament are strongly of the opinion that the people should continue to maintain royalty in grand style. Already the Princess has received a million dollars worth of presents.

A BALTIMORE newspaper pays the following tribute to American diplomacy; "The beauty of Mr. Blaine's work is that America, after a long season of humiliation and submission to petty German insults, has been triumphantly vindicated—not only in our own estimation, but by the consensus of opinion in Europe and British Islands. There has been no bluster, but a simple statement of the case of the United States, backed by a courageous demand for fair dealing, something that Bismarck can appreciate if he does not entirely relish."

THE ROYAL WEDDING.

There has been very much said in regard to the great wedding which took place in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace, London, on Saturday. The young lady who was one of the principles was Louise, eldest daughter of the Prince of Wales. She is a very sweet girl and has a long name, but we will give only one of them, viz., Louise. The bride-groom is the Earl of Fife, who is very rich, with an income of about $2000 per day.

The presents received by the bride were valuable enough to make her rich, aggregating about $1,000,000, but in addition to this, Parliament voted her a royal income.

There were only a few persons present at the wedding. They were chiefly members of the royal families of Europe. The rain fell copiously, but all along the route from Marlborough House to Buckingham Palace, there was a large crowd of spectators, who cheered the happy couple and made them feel in the best of spirits. We won't give the names of all the bridesmaids, because most of them have very long titles. There were eight in all—five Princesses and three Countesses.

We imagine the bride looked lovely in her dress of duchess lace, with flowing trains. It was trimmed with orange blossoms. She also wore a wreath of orange blossoms and a point de-gauze veil. In brief, it must have been even prettier than the Pifer-Williams wedding which occurred in Bellefonte last week.

The bridesmaids wore dresses of blush pink faille and carried bouquets of pink roses. The Queen wore a dress of black brocade. Her Majesty appeared to be in excellent health and spirits. The Princess of Wales was attired in pearl gray satin, brocaded with silver. Her Royal Highness also wore a tiara of diamonds.

The clergymen officiating were the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Dean of Windsor, Domestic Chaplain to the Queen, the Rev. F. A J Hervey, Domestic Chaplain to the Prince of Wales, and Rev. T. Teignouth Shore. The Prince of Wales gave away the bride.

A choral service was sung by the choir of the Chapel Royal, St. James. A feature of the services was the singing of a special anthem entitled "O, Perfect Love," composed by Mr. Joseph Barnaby.

After the benediction had been pronounced the Queen kissed the bride and cordially greeted the groom.

Several of the young gentleman present wanted to kiss the bride, but the Queen frowned and they didn't.

Then followed two very excellent wedding breakfasts and the Earl and Princess went to his house where other grand festivities awaited them. If they don't enjoy their honeymoon it will not be because they didn't have the "wherewith" for that purpose.

SOME of the Democratic papers have made a valuable discovery. They have at last found something that will defeat the Republican party and again bring Democracy into power. Here it is. Russel Harrison, son of the President of the United States, has accepted an invitation and actually dined with the Queen in England. Did any one ever hear of such an outrage? All the Irish-American voters in the United States are now expected to forthwith swear eternal enmity against the Republican party because of this act of a son of a President it elects to this high office, and it can never stand such an act as an American President's son dining with Queen Victoria. The proper thing for young Harrison to have done to save the party from disaster would have been to have indignantly trampled the Queen's invitation under his feet and given the English lion's tail a big twist. But he didn't do this and the Republican party must suffer for this oversight. It is really terrible to think of the consequences of this act. Some of the New York Democratic papers are giving columns of space to the event and already have the Republicans whipped dead sure as a result of it. Well this is a year of calamities and if Russell Harrison's dining with Queen Victoria causes the death of the Republican party, we will have to be reconciled to the great disaster.

MR. and Mrs. Gladstone, on Thursday, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

Gen. D. H. Hastings for Governor.

We do not wish to be misunderstood as to our position in making the announcement of Gen. Hastings as a candidate for Governor before the coming state convention one year hence. Nor do we desire to place the General in a false position. As we said in our issue of July 18 in announcing his name: "The REPUBLICAN therefore comes out this week and, upon its own responsibility, presents to the Republican party the name of a man who will undoubtedly be the right man in the right place." Now we meant just what we said. We announced the name of Gen. D. H. Hastings upon our own responsibility without his knowledge or consent, either directly or indirectly. We had no conversation with him upon the subject, nor with anyone representing him. In fact, the General has been continuously absent from home for the last two months except two very brief visits, and then we had no talk with him upon the question of the governorship or in fact any other political issue; and more, we were almost certain that if we had spoken to him upon the subject he would have urged us not to do it. We recognized in the General the coming man. His name is becoming a household word at every fireside throughout the length and bredth of our State, and his fame is broader than the bounderies of the Republic.

We have noticed his growing popularity for a long time, but have refrained from mentioning him for the office of chief magistrate until we had positive knowledge that he was being mentioned by many leading Republicans all over our State; feeling that we have as good right to be a political prophet as the great city papers we just went ahead. Such a man as General Hastings belongs to the people of the whole country. We do not think we need to consult him when we issue for him a call to duty. He is a noble hearted fellow, ever ready to serve the people wherever and whenever they need him, and will be just as ready to retire to his mountain home with—as he will have—the plaudits of a graetful people whenever that time comes. Therefore, we assert again we announced his name simply because we were sure we could place our finger on the man the people would and will call to serve them.

Mr. Wolf for Associate Judge.

The announcement of D. M. Wolf as a candidate for Associate Judge has met with a hearty response from Republicans from all over the county. There is a very strong element in the party who are determined this fall to cast their vote for men who will, in their official capacity, give their influence with an honest purpose to the faithful execution of the temperance laws that we now have. They recognize the fact that the coming election is one of the most important county elections as to its bearing upon this question. They recognize in D. M. Wolf a man of pure, upright life, honesty of purpose and as one who would be fearless in the discharge of every duty to his God and his fellow man. The friends of Mr. Wolf knew very well that he was not an office seeker; they do not urge him for this position with any idea that he needs it or that he would force himself forward. The best men do not do that, and Mr. Wolf is one of the best of men. It is such a man the people want to be judge of the court. The judicial ermine should be a mantle of purity. The court should be composed of men before whom honest men could come with confidence and knaves, though with respect, yet with fear and trembling; of men whom no influence, highr or low, could move from the pedestal of justice; of men who hold the scales so evenly ballanced that though some might find fault with their rulings none could question their even ballanced justice. The position of Judge is one of the most honorable positions within the gift of the people of the county—a position of all others that should seek the man, not the man the office. This is what the friends of Mr. Wolf are after. Not a man who wants the office as a politician seeks advancement, but one "upon whom every art has conspired to set its seal to give the world assurance of a man." We have received a letter from Mr. Wolf in which he says he is not a candidate for associate judge. While this is so, we think the convention could not do better than nominate him.

Melbourne, Australia, is to have a public clock, which will roll off a popular air every hour excepting during Sunday, when only sacred music will be played.

An Elizabeth, N. J., man being pursued by the police leaped from the third story of his home to the ground, and ran off. He wasn't injured in the slightest.

John Kline for District Attorney.

Among our announcements will be found the name of John Kline for District Attorney. Mr. Kline is a temperance republican and if nominated to office would faithfully prosecute all violations of law that came to his attention. He has been a close student for several years and therefore well versed in all that knowledge which will so well qualify him for the duties of this position. He is an industrious young man not given to any of the social evils that so often mar the bright prospects of rising men. He is honest and very conscientious in his dealings with all. If elected to this position he would win the good will and respect of all honest men. While it is not our province exactly to urge the claims of any man until the convention names a ticket yet we can say that the convention cannot find a better man than Mr. Kline and if the republicans give him the nomination he will make a faithful first class officer. At present we know of no other candidate and if there were many Mr. Kline would be their peer. There will probably be others before the convention meets; there are many good men at the Bellefonte Bar.

Poetry.

Chopping the Hash.

A wide, shady porch with a weatherstained floor,
A chince-covered chair by the low kitchen door,
Where eyeward the glories aspiringly run
With flowers to the shadow and leaves to the sun.

On the sill, with a big wooden bowl in her lap
And her chopping knife swinging a cheerful rap tap,
With her cap-border crowned by an old-time calash,
Grandmother Grigson sits chopping the hash.

The robin that lives in the lilacs close by
Cocks his head in surprise and makes ready to fly,
But lingers to listen, the wise little elf,
While Grandmother Grigson talks low to herself.

"There's beef an' pertater, an' cabbage and beet
That goes to the makin' of hash good an' sweet,
And nary a one of 'em' take it alone,
But makes a poor meal as you'll willin'ly own.

"There's joy an' there's sorrer, there's peace an' there's strife,
That goes to the makin' of what we call life:
An' nary a one on 'em come, to the p'int,
But makes a poor life, somehow all out o' j'int.

"For joy, yes, or peace, take it year after' year,
Are tame 'thout the seas'nin' of sorrer and fear,
I've et of the hash an' I've no fault to find,
And I'm thankful that my life wasn't all o' one kind."

Midsummer Music.

(From the Chicago Herald)

The clar lenet had hushed its note.
The piccolo had ceased to play;
A drowsy cadence seemed to float
And tremble till it died away.

I closed my eyes, and in a flash
I heard once more those dreamy strains:
I heard the fountain's limpid plash
As soft and cool as Summer rains.

From Weber's airiest, sweetest waltz
My soul to Boccherini passed;
The world was lost and all its faults—
I thought myself in heaven at last.

I breathed those harmonies again
That floated on the atmosphere;
But, oh, what horror filled me when
A vulgar voice cried; "Here's yer beer!"

Before the Tomb

Here in God's peace she lies,
Death-misted hazel eyes
Closed in fast sleep.
See how the sunbeams fair
Smile o'er her brow and hair,
Crossed her cold hands in prayer,
Well may ye weep!

She is so young to lay
In the dark grave away.
Oh, Death is king to-day!
Hush, and be still!
Close the lid over her,
Let the grass cover her;
This is God's will.

WILTED.

'Twas but a month or two ago
I thought we'd frozen be;
And now I'd really like to plunge
Into the Polar Sea.

'Twas but a week or two ago
I said to young and old,
"Pray do not lighten garments yet.
The weather is too cold."

But now, I sit and pant and puff.
With palm-leaf fan in hand,
A glass of ice-cold lemonade
Beside me on a stand.

And as I quaff the cooling draught,
I wipe my brow and cry,
"My friends, I would that you and I Could lay all clothing by."

Our Story Teller.

AFTER MANY DAYS.

"Lady, will you give me something to eat?"

Mrs. Wentworth startled as a childish voice broke the stillness of the summer's eve.

The full heat of an August day fell over the earth, drooping and withering the flowers beneath its scorching rays. Over the hills came the sweet odor of new mown hay, and the whet of the haymaker's scythe with an occasional song from a bird fell dreamingly upon the ear. Within the old farm-house a little breeze crept, softly swaying the white dimity curtains in the windows and filling the room with the scent of sweet marjoram, while the bees hummed lasily at their work.

Sitting within the shadow of the doorway, bending over a piece of patch-work, Mrs. Wentworth looked out into the summer sunshine on a pale, tired little face, with large, sad blue eyes, framed in a profusion of golden curls. A child about ten years old, with dusty shoes and short dress, thin and worn, but scrupulously clean, stood before her.

"Give you something to eat, child? Why, to be sure I will, but by the looks of you it seems as if you are in want of more than food. Come in, child, sit down and rest yourself while I get you something to eat, and when you are rested you shall tell me why such a mite of a little one is traveling all alone," and good hearted Mrs. Wentworth hustled away, returning in a few moments with a well filled tray, a bowl of milk, a fresh loaf of bread and cold chicken.

"What is your name, little one, and how old are you?"

"Hester Leigh is my name, ma'am, and I am just ten years old."

"Where is your mother, child?"

"She is dead, ma'am; she died three weeks ago, and there's no one to take care of me but Uncle Joe, and I'm going to him."

"Where be he living?" asked Mrs. Wentworth, reckless of her grammar.

"In Mapleton. Is it far from here, ma'am?"

"Law sakes, child, you ain't thinking of walking there? It's twenty miles or more."

"I started there this morning, but I lost my ticket, so I had to get off at the last station, and I walked on until I got here. The minister who used to come to see mamma gave me my ticket and a letter to a friend of his, a minister in Mapleton, and said he would find Uncle Joe for me. He promised mamma he would, but now my ticket is gone and I will have to walk."

Kind Mrs. Wentworth drew the corner of her large white apron across her eyes, and she looked down on the little tear stained face.

"I tell you what I'll do, child," said she, "you shall stay here with me to-night, and to morrow Ezra—that's my husband, shall take you into town when he goes to market and put you on the train, then you will not have far to go."

"But I have no money," faltered the child.

"Never mind that. I am only a poor working woman, but never have I been so poor that I could not help others who are in great need."

So early on the morrow Mrs. Wentworth slipped a five dollar bill in the child's hand.

"My butter money," she whispered, "and you are welcome."

In another moment little Hester had climbed into the large wagon by the side of Ezra Wentworth, and the last he saw of the little girl was a timid, tear stained face pressed against the window as the train whirled off.

* * * *

"Read it again, Ezra."

The heat of an August sunshine fell over the land, flooding the earth with its bright, golden light. The same sun light that twelve years ago fell over a little, tired face and brightened the golden curls that drooped over the shoulders of a child who plodded over the dusty high road and begged at the farm house door.

The old homestead looked much the same as it had years before. The same old moss covered, two story house, with the brick gable ends, over which wreaths of ivy clung, The same white door sill with its two broad steps leading down to the ground. The white dimity curtains still swayed in the window, and the odor of sweet marjoram and clovers dwelt about the place. But within the farm house one change had taken place. The two who sat together clasping hands had grown older and more feeble than when we saw them last. He with head bowed down with age, she with eyes blinded with tears.

"Read it again, Ezra," the trembling voice faltered.

Ezra Wentworth raised his head and looked tenderly across at the wan, wrinkled tear stained face of his wife, framed with silver gray hair.

"I will tell you what," he said, "it won't seem so hard, maybe, if I read it. Listen, deary, it is this: The old place is sold and we must go."

* * * *

"May I come in, it is so cool in here, said a low, sweet voice in the doorway, and the two old people raised their heads and gazed upon the fairest picture they had ever seen.

A woman, young and fair, clad in a dress of pure white, with eyes of soft blue and a tender, sweet face stood before them.

"Certainly, miss, come in." Mrs. Wentworth arose and made a courtesy, while Ezra brought a chair.

"A mitish hot day it be, miss; and you can cool here you are welcome."

Something in that sweet face seemed to bring back the past; yet when or where had they ever seen it before.

"You are in trouble," said the young girl, looking up in Mrs. Wentworth's face, where traces of tears were visible.

"Yes, lady, we are in trouble."

"Would you mind telling me about it?" the young voice whispered.

"There ain't much to tell, lady," answered Ezra, seeing his wife's eyes fill with tears," but if you wish to hear it we don't object. It ain't much to tell, as I said before, but to us, wife and me, it's everything, because it was all we had. Forty-six years ago, or more, I brought Eliza home here as my bride. It didn't belong to us then, but we stayed on and worked the place, and ten years later we had saved money enough to buy the farm. It was a glorious day, it was, when I came home and laid in Eliza's hand the deed for the old place. Then for 15 years or more, we had no trouble, 'twas only hard work and happiness. Three children came to us to help brighten our lives—two bonny boys and one wee lassie, but one by one, as they grew older, they left us to join the angels in the world above, and we were left alone, Eliza and me. It was like beginning the old life over again, only we had grown older, and our hearts were heavy with the shadow of the three graves."

"Lady, am I tiring you with my story?"

"No, go on," she whispered, while tears stood in her deep blue eyes.

"There ain't much more," continued the old man, "but maybe it is the hardest of all because we have grown old, and so little able to bear it. But it was hard trouble, it was, that came to us, for I was taken ill, and for two years or more I lay upon my bed, while there was no money coming in from the old place to help us along. But Eliza and I cried many a day when we had to mortgage the farm. I thought when I got well I could work and pay it off, but I never could, and the loadstone that has hung over us for years has fallen at last, for this letter tells us that the place is sold and we must go. It ain't right to complain, but it seems a little hard now that we are so old and can't work."

A deep silence fell over the room when he had finished; only the lazy hum of the bees while building their nests over the deer-way, fell softly upon the ear. Then in another moment the fair young girl was kneeling at their feet.

"You shall never leave it," she cried, while her eyes grew bright and sparkling. "Do you hear? You shall never leave the old home."

Ezra Wentworth and his wife started and gazed in surprise at the young face glowing in its eagerness.

"I can't understand," the old lady faltered.

"Don't try," was the bright answer, "only remember the home is yours. Do you recollect," she continued, smiling up in Mrs. Wentworth's face, "years ago, I think twelve or more, a young child who begged bread at your door, whom you took in for the night and treated so kindly, putting five dollars in her hand when on the following day she left you?"

"Little Hester," Mr. Wentworth cried, while his wife started up and placed her arm on the girl's arm.

"Do you know her? Oh, how often I have longed to hear of the child!"

"Yes, I know her, and will now tell you of her."

"After she left you she went to Mapleton, where she had little difficulty in finding her uncle, and he took her to his home, oh, such a beautiful home. To the beggar it seemed almost a palace, and from that day she has never known a want. But her uncle's health was impaired and he fancied that a tour to the old world would bring back his lost strength. So with his niece he set sail for Europe, and for years they traveled over the continent, where he died. But his last words to his niece were, 'Hester, when you go home find the old farm house and do what you can to help those good people who were so kind to you.' Well, she came back, and in the town yonder she heard of your trouble, bought the old homestead, and she is kneeling at your feet holding the deed that will give you back your dear old home."

"For a moment all was silent, and then the old lady stretched out her feeble arms.

"Hester, little Hester, oh! my child, can it be true?"

"Here is the paper, see," she whispered, "it is all your own."

Mr. Wentworth raised his hand and laid it on her golden curls. "God bless you, little lady," he cried, while his wife sat quietly stroking the little hand, too full of thankfulness for speech.

"Oh, Ezra," she cried at length, "to think how little we did and how freely it has been repaid."

"You did what you could," the young girl whispered, softly.

Yes, and the bread of charity, which had been cast upon the waters, had returned to them "After many days."—Olive Branch.

QUEER, ISN'T IT?

Here is a pretty how 'dye do. John K. North, of this place, has a cat which recently gave birth to three white kittens. John Frampton, who lives next door to Mr. North, has a pair of white rabbits, and a few days ago three little bunnies came to the rabbit household. Now mark what happened. The old cat lost one of her kittens, and, finding the rabbits' nest, she took one of the young ones in her mouth, carried it to her own quarters, placing it beside the kittens, evidently thinking it was her lost offspring. The ears were out of all proportions, to be sure, but the color was right and puss was satisfied. Mr. Frampton missed the young rabbit and told Mr. North about it, and two or three days afterward, when Mr. North was working around the stable, he noticed the young rabbit in with the kittens, and saw that it and the old cat had assumed the relations of mother and child. He told Mr. Framton about it, who took little bunnie home, but was astonished to find that the mother rabbit would have nothing whatever to do with her truant offspring treating it as a stranger and interloper. The little rabbit was therefore taken back to the old cat, which was delighted at its return, and she continues to be a mother to the changling, and will no doubt bring it up in the most approved pussy cat principles, teaching it to catch mice and attend the midnight concerts on the back yard fence.—Punxsutawney Spirit.

A rich valetudinarian called in a physician for a slight disorder. The physician felt his pulse, and inquired, "Do you eat well?" "Yes," said the patient. "Do you sleep well?" "I do." "Then," said the Esculapius, "I shall give you something to take away all that."

THREE DAYS IN A COFFIN.

The Awful Experience of a Prematurely Buried Attorney of St. Paul.

St. Paul Globe.

"It is horrible, horrible, sir—I lay in that coffin alive and just as conscious of what was going on around me as I am at this moment. I have always been of a hysterical temperment, and on one previous occasion had lain in a cataleptic state for twenty-four hours. This last time I lay for three days, perfectly conscious, as I said before, but to all appearances as dead as Cæsar.

The speaker was a well known attorney of St. Paul, who related the history of his thrilling experience with catalepsy conditionally that his name be withheld from publication.

"It has been said," continued the hero of his blood curdling advent "that there are infallable signs which denote death and are unmistakable to the practiced eye of the medico. I deny that such is the case, and no one has had a better opportunity of judging than I have. When I died, or rather when three of the best known medical men of Boston had asserted that I was dead, I had been for three days previous to my supposed demise in a condition of violent hysteria, bordering almost on insanity, owing to the death of a sister whom I loved to distraction.

"My death was attributed by the learned disciples of Æsculapius to disease of the heart. The three old fogies held a consultation over me and I heard them discuss the advisability of a post-mortem examination, there being a slight difference of opinion among them as to what was the actual cause. At this time I was tying on a board perfectly rigid and fully realized the fact that I should be buried alive if I couldn't brace up and explain matters within the next few hours. I immediately blessed my mother and brother for their refusal to allow those old butchers to go for me with their knives. That's all that saved me, I tell you.

"How did I get out of the fix? Well, it was just by the skin of my teeth. When the undertaker and his assistant brought the coffin and I was lifted into it I knew at once that the coffin was too short, and just ached to say so, but I couldn't speak a word to save my life. I was tongue tied; hadn't control of a muscle. The merest accident in the world prevented my being buried alive. A tack had been left sticking out from the drapery gracing the interior of the casket, and the fellow in the coffin business commenced a series of vicious jabs at it with a sharp edged screw driver. On one of these the instrument struck a nail head and, flying off at a tangent, took me on the jaw with considerable force. The blood spouted forth and I instantly regained the use of my limbs. I wanted to knock seven kinds of blue fire out of the coffin man, but the undertaker skipped, so I put it all over his assistant, I am ashamed to say, for the man was too horrified at my resurrection to defend himself in the least.

"Now you can just bet I am as healthy a man as most of them nowadays, and I've issued strict orders that in the event of my death I am not to be buried until an artery has been opened and my decease absolutely proven."

How Our Country is Opened Up.

N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

The census of 1890 will reveal many wonderful changes. The central line of population will be much nearer the Mississippi river than it was ten years ago. Over 17,000,000 acres of land were sold in the last fiscal year under the operation of the homestead and timber culture laws. More than 124,000,000 acres of land have been settled in the last eight years, representing a larger area than the states of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan.

The greatest changes have taken place in the northwestern group of states and territories, where nearly 60,000,000 acres have been settled within the last eight years. In the southwestern group, comprising, Kansas, Colorado, Missouri and New Mexico, nearly 30,000,000 acres have been occupied. On the Pacific coast 19,000,000 acres have been settled, and 13,000,000 acres must be added for the southern states on both side of the Mississippi.

Along the Pacific railroads 18,000,000, have been opened since the last census. In other words, the government and the Pacific railroads have opened for settlement in the last eight years a territory larger than the New England, Middle states and South Carolinia combined; larger than Germany or France, and about twice as large as Great Britain and Ireland.

WITH A MORAL.

Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow; it ran away, one summer day, where lambs should never go, Then Mary sat her down and tears streamed from her eyes; she never found that little lamb—she did not advertise. Now, Mary had a brother Jim, who kept a country store; he sat him down and smoked his pipe and watched the open door. And as the people passed along, but did not stop to buy, Jim still sat down and blinked his sleepy, sleepy eye. And so the sheriff closed him out, but still he lingered near, and Mary came to drop with him a sympathetic tear. "How is it, sister, that the other merchants here sell all their goods and pay their bills and thrive from year to year?" Remembering well her own bad luck, the little maid replies; "The other merchants get there, Jim, because they advertise."

JOHN'S MOTHER KNEW IT.

BUT THE WORLD HEARD LITTLE OF HER HERO'S LOVING SELF-SACRIFICE.

Detroit Free Press.

There was a timid knock at the door of the country printing office of the Weekly Palladium. After the usual "come in" there entered a faded and bent old lady, whose dress immediately proclaimed her a resident of the far-back townships. She had a frightened, bewildered look, and her bombazine dress was dusty and wrinkled with the long ride she had taken over the Kansas prairies in her trip to the county seat.

I regretted having called out so roughly and apologized. She did not notice my apology, but asked in a trembling voice:

"Is this the printin' office?"

"Yes," I replied. What can I do for you?"

"I saw you didn't have nothin' about John in the paper."

"I told the undertaker," she went on, "ter see that the paper knew about it, but I 'spose he didn't.

"No, he never told me, I am sure."

"Ye see, we live out in Cheever township, an' ye prob'ly didn't hear of John's dyin'. I looked for it in the paper, but didn't see nothin'."

"I'm sorry, but if you will give me the facts I'll see that it goes in next week," was the only reply I could make.

"John was an awful good boy," she began. "He was good ter me, an' that's what counts. When we came west we had kinder poor luck. My husban' died an' the other boys left me, an' with debts on the claim an' no money ahead I don't know what I'd done 'cept for John. He worked night an' day, plowin' an' plantin' an' sowin'. He never had a harsh word for his mother—never."

She stopped to wipe her eyes, and I found it convenient to look in another direction.

She continued: "He was twenty-five years old, but he looked ten more—he worked too hard. I guess it killed him, but I didn't know he was overdoin'. He never complained. He wasn't sick very long—just a few days. I done all that I could for him. I'd have given my life for John if the Lord's have let it be that way. You don't know how lonesome the claim is now. Just left me alone in the sod cabin; I can't die, an' it's only sorrow to live. I had John buried on the prairie so I could go to him; I'll go to him for good pretty soon, I hope."

She sobbed a little and then recovered sufficiently to give me the full name, age, etc., of the dead youth, after which, her errand accomplished, she left me to ride home across the pairies to her lonely cabin.

If I did not give John a suitable death notice the next week, if I did not feelingly portray the unselfish heroism of the boy whose world was his mother and whose ambition was to aid her in necessities, it was not because I did not try. I hope I succeeded in bringing a little comfort to the heart of John's mother, who may yet be waiting to join the noble son buried beneath the carpet of sod stretching away from her door.

Boston Lady: "Bridget, I wish you would refrain from using that coarse and vulgar word 'pantry.'" Bridget: "Then what should I say, mum?" "Well, to refined ears, 'trousery' is not nearly so offensive."

"Didn't you tell me you could hold the plough?" said a farmer to an Irishman he had taken on trial. "Be aisy, now," says Pat. "How could I hould it an' two horses pullin' it away? Just stop the craytures, and I'll hould it for ye."

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

How it comes about and the Materials Which Cause It.

Baltimore Sun.

By all the principles of chemistry spontaneous combustion is a possible and, in fact, a frequent phenomenon. Prof. William P Tonry, the chemist, says the flame in such cases invariably arises from a combination of oxygen with some material favorable to producing heat.

Wherever there is turpentine there is always danger of spontaneous combustion. If the substance be poured on rags, especially when they are soaked with grease, fire is likely to result. Furniture establishments and all places where oils and turpentine are kept, are especially liable to visitation from fires of inexplicable origin.

Hay, when moist and packed tightly, ferments by a natural process and absorbs oxygen so freely as to produce flame in many instances. Sulphuric acid if allowed to come in contact with bagging at fertiiizer factories is also a source of great danger. The same acid mixed with water produces intense heat.

A common source of unexpected combustion is the gas which escapes from a jet which has been carelessly left open. Gas and common air produce an explosive compound which can be touched off like gun-powder by a tiny flame.

Prof. Tonry says it is very difficult to prevent combustion which arises from natural combinations, although ventilation and cleanliness in private houses and business establishments will go a long way toward reducing the danger. The phenomenon is common to all seasons, although a temperature of 70 or 80 degrees which is high enough for fermentation, is most favorable to it.

An accumulation of inflammable materials is always to be avoided. It was once believed that human bodies, especially those of inebriates, were liable to take fire and be consumed spontaneously, but the theory finds but little acceptance in these days.

Superintendent: "Make a good policeman?" Father: "Yes, sir; you see he's a somnambulist—could walk his beat while asleep, you know."

"I'm so indignant that I cannot properly express myself!" cried the speaker. "Then put a stamp on yourself and go by mail," was the unsympathetic response.

Oldmanson: "Have you a telephone, Biggs?" Biggs: "No. I am not on speaking terms with the company. Their rates are too high."

An Irish shoemaker advised a customer, when he complained of his new boots being tight, not to put them on until he had worn them for a day or two.

"I am like a tree," he observed; as the clock struck eleven, "I am rooted at your side." "Yes, but you never leave, do you?" And then he "put forth."

"Is love blind?" asked little Johnny, as Merritt and his sister came into the room, looking very innocent. "Yes, my dear," replied the mother. "If that's so," persisted the young fiend, "how could Mr. Merritt see when Cora got under the mistletoe?"

A female of an uncertain age was asked by a census taker; "How old are you, madam?" "Thirty years," she replied. "That's what you told me last census, ten years ago." "Well, I'm not one of the kind of women to tell one story one time, and another story another."

Captain of ironclad to artilleryman "Do you see that Chinese general there, about three miles off? Let him have one of those eight-inch shells in his eye." Artilleryman (equal to his situation): "Ay, ay, sir. Which eye your honor?"

A Shocking Revelation.

Chicago Tribune.

'Were you ever engaged in a train robbery?' asked the prosecuting attorney, looking at him keenly.

'I was never indicted for train robbery,' answered the witness evasively.

'That is not the question,' said the lawyer. 'I ask you again. 'Were you ever a train robber?'

'Judge,' said the witness, turning imploringly to the dignitary on the bench, 'must I answer that question?'

'You must,' answered the Judge. 'And remember you are under oath.'

The witness turned pale and his knees knocked together.

'I suppose it's got to come out. I sold books and bananas on the cars for a whole year when I was a young fellow,' faltered the miserable man.

THE State Fair Grounds, at Philadelphia, have been seized by the Sheriff on a mortgage for $25,000, and if it is not speedily paid he will proceed to sell the same. The State Fair has never been a self-sustaining investment, and its removal to Philadelphia was the last straw that broke the camel's back. It is doubtful if there will be a fair this fall.

AN effort was made to close the saloons of Cincinnati on Sunday and it was measurably successful. There is no other business in the world which so brazenly defies the law as the saloon business.

YOUR GIRL'S CHARACTER.

An old astrological production gives the character of a girl according to the month she is born in, as follows:

If a girl is born in January, she will be a prudent housewife, given to melancholy, but good tempered and fond of fine clothes.

If in February, an effectionate wife and tender mother, and devoted to dress.

If in March, a frivolous chatterbox, somewhat given to quarrelling, and a connoisseur in gowns and bonnets.

If in April, inconsistent, not very intelligent, but likely to be good looking and studious of fashion plates.

If in May, handsome, amiable and given to style in dress.

If in June, impetuous, will marry early, be frivolous and like dressy clothes.

If in July, possibly handsome, but with a sulky temper and a penchant for gay attire.

If in August, amiable and practical, likely to marry rich and dress strikingly.

If in September, discreet, affable, much liked, and a fashionable dresser.

If in October, pretty and coquettish, and devoted to attractive garniture.

If in November, liberal, kind, of a mild disposition, and an admirer of stylish dress.

If in December, well proportioned, fond of novelty and extravagant and a student of dressy effects.—Harper's Magazine.

A Year's Elections.

The current year is notably an "off year" in general politics. Only eleven States elect officers this year. Kentucky will hold a general election for State Treasurer on August 5. Elections in ten other States will take place on November 5. On that day:

Iowa will elect a Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Maryland will elect Comptroller and Attorney General.

Massachusetts will elect Governor and State officers.

Mississippi will elect Governor and State officers.

Nebraska will elect a Supreme Court Judge and two Regents.

New Jersey will elect Goveornor and State officers.

New York will elect State officers except Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Ohio will elect Governor and State officers.

Pennsylvania will elect a State Treasurer.

Virginia will elect Governor and State officers.

Political interest this year according ly is centered in the elections of the newly admitted States, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington and Montana, which are now framing their constitutions and will elect State Governments and Legislatures which will choose eight new United States Senators. Each new State will elect a Representative in Congress, except South Dakota, which will elect two.

The terms of no United States Senators expire next year, so the telection of members of the Legislature his year is of interest as bearing on National politics only in cases where the members of the Legislature chosen this year hold office for two years. The Senate elected in New York State will vote for a United States Senator in 1791 to to succeed the Hon. William M. Evarts.

Music Review.

Under this heading the DAILY NEWS will from week to week give a special review of all music—book or sheet—received at this office. This departure, it is hoped, will prove beneficial to the publishers of music as the quickest means of bringing before the public their latest productions.

THE NEWHALL & EVANS MUSIC COMPANY, Cincinnati, Ohio.—Sleepy Little Eyes, a beautiful cradle song with waltz refrain, by Henry Lamb. Price 40 cents. Lovely and simple, we can recommend it with a personal knowledge of its merits.

Lenore, words and music by Jerome Hill, price 60 cents. One of the best and sweetest songs ever published is this. Not very difficult, the rythm of the melody is simply perfect.

M D SWISHER, 115 South 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.—We have received quite a lot of new music from this house, among which are in Instrumental "Thought Blossom," a schottische by C H Neilson; "Santa Lucia," waltzes by Paul Rubens; "Love's Dreamland," waltz by Otto Roeder. In Vocal music there are "Wandering in Dreamland," song and chorus by B C Starks; "The Love of Old," song by Gerald M Lane; "Kitty Aroon," a beautiful Irish song by George Cooper. "The Johnstown Flood, or Conemaugh Valley," song by W W Lanckton. All of the above are very excellent and high grade music and the price of any piece named is only 10 cents. We desire to call special attention to the fact that this is the only house that issues lithograph music at the uniform price of 10 cents per copy—the cheapest in the world. We also desire to state that because it is cheap in price it must not be supposed cheap in quality as it will bear comparison with any 60c. music published. This house also publishes all the well-known operas—words and music—at the uniform price of 25 cents each. Send postal card for their catalogue and price list of new and popular music.

The only complete book published. Now ready.

Value of Character.

When I was a boy I lived considerable of my time on a cast-iron New England farm, in the town of Deering, in the State of New Hampshire. My grandfather owned there a large estate. My father lived at Cambridge, Mass., where I was born, but sent me almost every summer to live with my grandfather, on the farm above mentioned.

The present generation can hardly realize the changes that have taken place since that time. The hours of labor were long, the man who was not in the field at sunrise on a long summer day was called late; he worked as long as he could see at night, and in hay time at least milked the cows and did the chores after dark. In no place is the change more marked than in the homes of the people. The average well-to do New England farmer had a straw carpet in his parlor and perhaps in the spare chamber. The pictures were confined to a few daguerrotypes that were laid on the parlor table, and perhaps an oil painting or two of some member of the family hung on the wall. The food consisted almost entirely of the products of the farm—pork, potatoes, corn and rye bread and salt beef.

In my grandfather's family, who was counted a rich man, and owned a a mile square of land—they had white flour bread at rare intervals, that product being considered quite a luxury. The principal book of biography, of history and of poetry in that home was the Bible, where, amid its stories of heavenly love, was kept the brief but expresive record of the cradle, the altar and the tomb. A story is told of an old-fashioned New England farmer and his wife on the occasion of the introduction of the new version of the Scriptures. Said the wife, "James, which book will you read out of this morning, the new or the old version?" The old man replied, "Sarah, give me that old leather-covered Bible. It has been used at every wedding and funeral in this family for two hundred years. The new version may do for young folks, but, Sarah, you and I are too near heaven to fool with it."

How all this is changed it is hardly necessary to describe. The home of the humblest is carpeted now; for a small sum he can buy pictures and beautiful works of art to adorn the walls; his food is the best, and candles and the old-fashioned fireplace have given place to modern appliances for lighting and heating. But what prevented such a life of exhaustive toil as was then necessary to get the wherewithal to live, from destroying the race? How comes it that barefooted boys who were raised on those rocky farms, inured to hardship and toil, to-day are the merchant princes of Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Cincinati, New Orleans and other large cities? How comes it that these boys are, many of them, to day renowned in letters, in art and science? Well, I will answer for you. It was the sterling virtue that was taught in those homes; physical exhaustion was prevented, and vigorous manhood was maintained by a sacred, religious regard for the Sabbath day as a day of rest and surcease from toil.

Although I never have poised before the world as a Christian "par excellence," I have always cast my vote and influence in favor of a faithful observance of the old-fashioned Sabbath. I have always tried to resist the efforts of those who would break down the legal safeguards, which our fathers wisely placed around it. We, at the Eureka, are all of one mind on the subject. We are faithful believers in Sunday as a day of rest from all business. Our Mr. A. V. Smith has often expressed himself clearly upon this subject, and would shudder at the thought of attempting to make a dollar on the Lord's day. He is one of those men who believe that money so earned would do no good to the owner, but would prove a curse to him; that for a man to prosper with his money he must earn it in some honest way.

We believe that "he that doeth wrong shall receive punishment for the wrong he hath done, for there is no respect of person with God." Call us old fogies if you choose, but I firmly believe that the success of the Eureka Grocery Co., or the prosperity of any individual family, state or nation, may be measured by their regard for the Sabbath day.

I, as the Eureka man, call upon business men of Bellefonte and Centre County to ponder upon this subject. I know of no grocers who need to be corrected in this particular, but do all our business men think about this matter? Gentlemen, are you all observing this day? I do not appeal to you particularly as Christians. Of course they should and will do their duty, but we are all interested in preserving the sacredness of the seventh day, for if this institution was broken down you are the first men who would suffer thereby.

A community who considered that day no better than any other would soon call upon you to keep your stores open for their accommodation. Your competitors, through greed, would do it, and you would be forced to follow in their steps. The result would be seven days of ceaseless toil, and no more business done, or money made than is now in the six working days. All working men are also interested in the preservation of this day as a holy day, for the same reason. Now this is a reason why men and women, not Christians, should observe the day. Of course, Christians should keep and observe it because it is a command of God, and because it is right; because no man of character can fail in this matter. If you want to be a man of character fail not, nor forget the command to keep holy the Sabbath day.

We have among us politicians, demagogues and croakers who tell young men there is no longer any opportunity to rise, who seek to array class against class, the rich against the poor, the laborer against the manufacturer. The man who does that, though he be president of the United States, is an enemy of his country and his kind. I tell you, young man, you will pass for just about what you are worth and temperance, industry and good character carry in their hands a sure prestige of

VICTORY AND SUCCESS.

Demosthenes was once approached by a man with the remark, "Sir, the nobility of your family begins with you." "Yes, sir," said Demosthenes, "and yours ends with you." Young man, see that the nobility of your family does not end with you. Remember that a noble man is not always a man born in affluence. Wealth has nothing to do with the character of a man. A noble, God-like man is one who has in his heart no room for a single evil thought and is often born in poverty, and want sat by his cradle.

Look around you; how many of the leading families of this county or the men who founded these families were born even in comfortable circumstances, in a monetary point of view? Our Harris, Humes, Curtins, Wilsons, Irvins, Reynolds, Valentines, Millikens, McFarlanes, Rhoads and many others we might mention, were all self made men,—men of character, men of worth, men who have left their foot-prints on the sands of the time in which they lived; but were in their early days subject to all the hardships of the life of the early pioneers, when white bread was a rarety.

To their descendents, we say, see to it that these families, as to force and character do not end with you. Your character is of more consequence than your blood. Set your mark high, enter upon its pursuit at once, persevere.

I think much of what a Quaker once said: "I expect to pass through this world but once. If therefore, there be any kindness I can show to my fellow-men, let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again." Young man, young woman, "Let all the aims thou aimest at be thy country's, thy God and truth." Adopt as your motto

I live for the cause that lacks assistance,
For the wrongs that need resistance,
For the good that I can do.

The question of how far the county can go in incorporating into our body politic the dangerous and hostile elements that are poring in upon us; the question of restricting immigration; of national aid to education; the preservation of our institutions as they were founded by our fathers; the preservation of our religious liberties, with out God in our constitution, just as the fathers in their inspired wisdom made it, and other grave questions must be met and answered. These are duties of a national character which we as sovereigns of this great republic must decide upon from time to time, in perhaps the not distant future. Then there are local duties every man of character must prepare to meet; our duties to our families, to the poor around us, to our church, to the education of the young.

To our young men I say, correct some of the faults of your fathers if they failed to do so. Here in Bellefonte that importance has not been placed upon education that should have been. Of course men are not perfect, and the men we have alluded to above have had their faults, They are old men now, but there is yet time for them to put the cap stone on their lives. Bellefonte, the centre of the State, should also be the centre of education, refinement and culture.

Our Academy should by these men be handed down to their descendents fully equipped for a career of usefulness in full accord with the spirit of the times. This old school where these men were educated is now heavily in debt; the title of the property has passed away from the control of the trustees. This should be cleared and this property dedicated anew to the glorious cause for which it was founded. It should be endowed; the building should be repaired and the whole institution put in shape. To you men who are passing from the stage of active life, this work is yet left undone.

We hope these suggestions by the Eureka man will be pondered upon. At the same time do not forget to purchase your groceries at the Eureka Grocery store, next door to Post-Office, Bellefonte, Pa. While I do the preaching, Mr. A. V. Smith, our storekeeper will ever be ready to sell you groceries. He is a man of large experience. He understands his business completely. He is always glad to serve you and will sell you a slice of ham, a pound of tea, a barrel of sugar or a postage stamp with the grace and dignity of a prince of the blood, and like a true nobleman he serves all alike—the low, the high, the rich, the poor. Nothing pleases him so well as to receive a fine lot of good goods, and that kind we always furnish him. Now call and see him. If you do not like my preaching call and see Smith and talk the matter over with him. As sure as you live, he will show you something nice that you will have to buy. We warrant him to wash and not fade

The Advantages.

Mr. Chas. Hartzheim, of Freehold, N. J., sends a letter to the American Economist that contains some instructive points in favor of protection. We give a few extracts:

"American workers live better, own more property and have larger deposits in b nks than any others. The reason is that food is produced and sold here cheaper than in Europe, and that, since our protective tariff system has become operative, the prices of goods have not advanced to the amount of the increase of wages paid here. Were it not so, the present rates of duty, which average less than 50 per cent., and which are generally collected on the very lowest foreign manufacturing cost could not balance the 50 to 200 per cent greater labor cost.

The present low price of commodities as compared with those paid during the low tariff period, and the prevailing greater stability of the market and the solidity of business generally were largely brought about by our protective policy. Home competition, created by it, has reduced the large profits formerly made by importers and by dealers, and thus given goods to consumers at their real value.

"The high cost of American labor has led to greater improvements in machinery and the consequent cheapening of the process of manufacturing. On the other hand, the high wages paid to the American worker have caused him to be a larger consumer, a fact which has been a great factor in cheapening goods. It may not be generally known that from 50 to 100 per cent., and sometimes much more, of the actual cost of labor and material is added to the price before an article reaches the consumer. This amount is added to pay interest on capital invested factory and office expense and the profits of the manufacturer, the wholesale and retail dealers. The larger the quantities made and sold, the smaller becomes the pro rata expense, and under a very large production it may be reduced to a mimimum. The popular large stores in New York and other large cities demonstrate that fact."

THE first half of 1889 was remarkable for its rainfall and disasters attending it both in this country and in China. The losses in this country have been unparalelled and spread over a wide expense of territory. The great disaster at Johnstown made all others appear small by comparison, yet had Johnstown not been a sufferer, the losses elsewhere in this and other states would have been phenomenal. The second half of the year opens with continued exceedingly heavy rainfalls and great damage to property, as well as a considerable loss of life. It looks now as if the year 1889 was destined to go into history as the wet year, as well as one of unusual disaster on land and water. A friend remarked a few days ago that, were it not for his firm belief in divine revelation as given in the Bible, he would believe that the final destruction of this world would be by water instead of by fire. And yet, this very water, of which our atmosphere appears to be capable of holding such enormous quantities, has in it the very elements capable of being converted into a gas that would consume the earth. Not only is man, but even the earth on which he lives, "fearfully and wonderfully made."

ONE of the most important matters connected with the coming census is the fixing of a new basis of representation in the House of Representatives of the United States Congress. With their increased population most of the States with the exception, perhaps, of those of the New England group, will be entitled to more Congressmen, unless the basis of representation is enlarged correspondingly, and this would meet with opposition from the newer and more rapidly developing States as well as from some of the older ones. If the basis for the next ten years is fixed as at present at 325 members, on a population of 68,000,000 there will be close to 209,000 residents to each Congressional district. Should the present basis be retained it will give 438 members to the House, and thus greatly increase the unwieldiness of an already unwieldy body.

WE shall maintain the excellent reputation our paper has always held as a first class local newspaper and offer it at the low price of $1.50 per year.

A DARING DEED.

HOW TWO MEN WALKED THROUGH FIERCE FLAMES HOT ENOUGH TO MELT IRON.

A dispatch from Ruthvan, Ontario, tells of a deed so wonderful as to be almost past belief and is as follows:

Nearly three weeks ago the Ruthvan gas well was set afire, it is supposed, by some disgruntled laborer. The cap over the top of the pipe was so fixed that the escaping gas rushed out directly toward the ground and made safe approach impossible. The roar could be heard in Kingsville, three miles away. Local mechanics found it impossible to remove the cap. The heat was simply unendurable and grew worse every day. Gas experts from Ohio were called to the scene, but they too, gave it up. The ground around the well became baked and when workmen tried to cool it with a stream from a fire engine the water went up in a cloud of steam before it had fairly struck the ground. All idea of cooling off the ground was given up. The owners of the well offered $1,000 to any one who would remove the cap.

William H. Marvin, a mining expert, who had some acquaintance with natural gas, undertook the job. He tried several schemes for removing the cap by aid of a long lever, but they all failed, for the reason that his lever would melt away under the fierce heat as soon as he got it near enough to work. He determined to go near the well himself and cut off the cap. It looked like certain death for any one to approach the well and even the owner advised Marvin to give up the idea.

The first attempt was a signal failure. Marvin only reached the flame when he retreated. For his next trial he wore a pair of rubber boots and inside these thrust his feet wound in dampened rags. Outside the boots he put a heavy covering of asbestos. His coat of asbestos was cone shaped.

In approaching the well he slid the cone along the ground, seeing his way through a glass set in the front. His assistant was robed like himself and carried a long iron bar, on which was fastened a small farrier's hammer. Two hundred people saw the daring men make this approach to the flame, and as Marvin disappeared in its circle a shudder swept over the on lookers. The hammer and chisel were brought into play and little by little the people could see that the man's skill and pluck would win. All at once the roar of the well changed to a shrill whistle and the cap was blown a hundred feet upward while Marvin's cone stood at the foot of the pipe motionless. It was some few minutes before it moved and the people thought again that he had perished in his attempt.

His assistant was badly burned and had to be taken to the hotel for assistance. When Marvin's cone bagan to move the people sent up a tremendous shout and the more venturesome ran as far as they could on the hot ground to reach him. He was taken out and revived, badly scorhed, but not hurt otherwise.

Marvin had earned his $1,000. This afternoon Marvin put a contrivance on the pipe to shut off the flow of gas, and now for the first time in nearly three weeks Ruthvan is quiet from the deafening roar. Marvin's cap is shaped like the letter T and placed on the cap after three trials. The company estimate that over 11,000,000 feet of gas has been consumed each day.

It will be two weeks before Marvin resumes his wonted appearance. His lips are badly swollen and his eyebrows and whiskers are entirely gone. The ground about the well is all so hot that no one can walk on it and it will take two or three days to cool it off. Marvin's feat is said to be the first successful one of the kind on record.

IT looks as if the American purchasers of "The Angelus," which is the great painting that brought over $100,000, will not bring it here to remain permanently, but only for exhibition purposes. The reason assigned is because of the high import duties on works of art. The duty is 30 per cent. ad valorum, which would run the cost of the painting up to $150,000. The question as to whether it will or will not be brought here lies entirely with the purchaser. We consider the duty right. Only the rich can indulge in such expensive luxuries, and it is proper that they should pay the duties. In such an arrangement the Republican party shows its wisdom and its consideration for the poor.

Ex-Commander J J Jones of Post 8, G. A. R., Philadelphia, has numerous friends here. He occasionally comes to Bellefonte as the agent for David, Bently & Co., of that city. He is a member of the famous 'Raizor' club of the Quaker City. After a business trip here he left on the Monday evening train.

ON the 20th of August it will be just thirty years since the first oil well was completed near Titusville, this State. The people of the oil country of the State propose to celebrate the event in a proper manner next month.

WATER FOR FUEL.

An Invention Designed to Revolutionize the Heating of Dwellings.

What appears to be an important invention has recently been made public in Philips, Wis. It is no less than the practical and cheap use of water as fuel. The appliance consists of nothing but a piece of gas pipe from two inches to six inches in diameter, as may be desired, and of convenient length to fit a cook stove or a parlor or other heater, with short legs or stable support to keep it in position. This is placed in the stove, with one end slightly projecting, to which is attached a vessel of water with stop cock conduit from the water vessel into the pipe.

Before reaching the steam chamber the water passes through the important part of the invention, the part that constitutes or contains the great discovery. By means of it the water may pass into the steam chamber, while the steam cannot pass out. The part of the pipe containing the steam chambers is within the stove, although a small part may be without if desired. To this the heat of a moderate wood or coal fire is applied, so as to heat the steam to a high temperature, say 300 degrees or nearly 400 degrees, when it passes out of a small orifice immediately into the midst of a bed of coals or flame from burning wood or coal, when it is at once raised to the required temperature, 400 degrees or more, to be immediately decomposed into its gases—oxygen or hydrogen—which instantly become flame.

Only a moderate summer fire of wood or coal will be required the coldest day in the winter, the gaseous flame furnishing the balance of the heat needed in the coldest room. The capacity for reducing heat may be regulated to suit requirements.

When it is known that hydrogen flame yields a heat in burning five times greater than carbon, or about 2,000 to 2,500 degrees, one may form some idea of the capacity of this little contrivance for producing heat.

By increasing the temperature of the gaspipe to about 400 degrees the vapor may be decomposed into its gases before exit from the pipe, and in such cases it is emitted in a jet of blue flame. In either case the oxyhydrogen flame is easily produced, and with a small consumption of fuel.

Illuminating gas is made from water by the same process only on a much larger scale, and is used in some towns in Pennsylvania. It seems feasible to produce this gas in small quantities for the reason that the supply of feed water can be kept up constantly in such quantities as desired.

Overwork.—Polite Doctor (cautiously): "Your husband is suffering from overwork or excessive indulgence in acoholic stimulants—it is, ahem, a little difficult to tell which." A Manager's Ill luck.—Theatrical Manager (despondently): "I am undone!" Wife: "Mercy! Has the theatre burned down?" "Worse! That new play on which I spent so much money contains such a fine moral lesson that the preachers are advising people to go to see it. Now it won't draw enough to pay the ushers."—New York Weekly.

Customer (returning): "Didn't I give you a $5 gold piece just now for a 5-cent piece?" Merchant (positively): "No, sir." Customer (turning to go); "It isn't of any particular consequence. I had a counterfeit $5 gold piece that I carried simply as a curiosity. I must have lost it some——" Merchant (hastily): "Wait a moment. I'll look again."—Chicago Tribune.

Didn't Catch His Meaning.

Buffalo Courier.

A man was sitting on the third seat in an Allen street car yesterday, when a short, fat man climbed aboard and at once began fanning himself with his hat. "Well, this is a hot day, ain't it?" asked he, addressing his neighbor. "Beg pardon?" said the first man. "I say it's a pretty hot day!" replied the short, fat man, raising his voice. The other put his hand to his ear and answered: "I didn't quite catch that; please repeat it." The little man's eyes grew red as he shouted, "It's a hot day, I tell you!" and the people in the back seats began to titter. "I'm a little deaf," responded the first man, perspiring like a sponge, "I say it's hot! hot, I tell you! hot day! Do you hear that?" The other shook his head, and the man, casting a look of wrath on him, alighted. Then the first man looked around on the passengers and chuckled gleefully.

Senator Ingalls on Prohibition In Kansas.

Kansas has abolished the saloon. The open dram shop is extinct. A drunkard is a phenomenon. The barkeeper has joined the troubadour, the crusader, and the mound-builder. The brewery, the distillery, and the bonded warehouse are known only to the archaeology. It seems incredible that among a population of 1,700,000 people, extending from the Missouri river to Colorado, and from Nebraska to Oklahoma, there is not a place which the thirsty or hilarious wayfarer can enter, and laying down a coin demand his glass of beer. This does not imply that absolute drought prevails everywhere, or that "social irrigation" has entirely disappeared. But the habit of drinking is dying out. Temptation being removed from the young and infirm, they have been fortified and redeemed. The liquor-seller being proscribed, is an outlaw, and his vocation disreputable. Drinking beer stigmatized, is out of fashion, and the consumption of intoxicants has enormously decreased. Intelligent and conservative observers estimated the reduction at ninety per cent; it cannot be less than seventy five.

Prohibition prohibits. The prediction of its opponents has not been verified; immigration has not been repelled nor has capital been diverted from the State. The period has been one of unexampled growth and development.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Houserville's Centenarian Citizen; Other Notes from that place by our Correspondent.

The prospects are very good for a splendid crop of corn in this vicinity.

Mr. Emanuel Albright, sometimes knows as "Old Mony," is supposed to be the oldest man in this neighborhood. He is very near if not altogether, one hundred years old. His exact age is not known. He lives by himself, does his own cooking and is supported by the township.

Mr. Geo. Keller has employed a new weaver in his woolen mill in the person of Miss Hattie Hoy of this place.

Mr. A. B. Cowher, who has been troubled with a disease of the heart, has gone to Philadelphia for repairs.

We are glad to note that Miss Ella Mayes, who has been in Illinois for some time, is with us once again.

Mr. H. W. Baird contemplates taking a trip to Shingletown some time in the near future.—[Now, if Mr. Baird will give notice of the time of his arrival we doubt not the Shingletown Silver Cornet Band will meet him at the station and the citizens will give him a reception in Stambach Hall.—Ed.]

Mr. Wm. Houser, of Lemont, has started a first class livery stable in that place. Mr. Houser is a thorough business man from away back without hayseed in his hair.

Our correspondent also sends the following which will be appreciated chiefly by people familiar with the game of euchre. Experts say it is excellent:

Man's life is a game of cards. First it is "cribbage." Next he tries to "go it alone" at a sort of "cut, shuffle and deal" pace. Then he "raises" the "deuce," when his mother "takes a hand in" and, contrary to Hoyle, "beats the little joker with her five." Then with his "Diamonds," he wins the "Queen of Hearts." Tired of playing "lone hand," he expresses a desire to "assist" his fair "partner," "throws out his cards" and the clergyman takes a $10 bill out of him on a "pair." She "orders him up" to build the fires. Like a "knave," he joins the "clubs," where he often gets "high," which is "low," too. If he keeps "straight" he is sometimes "flush." He grows old and "bluff," sees a "deal" of trouble, when at last he "shuffles" off this mortal toil and "passes in his checks," and he is "raked in" by a "spade." Life's fitful "game" is ended, and he waits the summons of Gabriel's "trump," which shall "order him up."

President Garfield's Physician.

Dr. Bliss speaking in the highest terms of Speer's Port Wine writes the following from

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25, 1884.
ALFRED SPEER, Esq., Passaic, N. J.

Dear sir:—I have to acknowledge the superior quality of Wines of your production, notably your Port Wine, and to say I have prescribed them for my patients for the past two years, with uniform and satisfactory results. I have full confidence in the purity of your Wines and that they are uniformly of standard strength, hence prescribe them almost exclusively in my practice,

Very truly yours,

Echoes From Milesburg.

Rev. G. W. Bouse is very sick.

Persons who are in the habit of writing in hymn books in the M. E. church are requested to quit as specimens of very obscene writing have been found in some of them lately.

Mr. Robert McKlain, of Ridgway, formerly of this place, is now visiting his aunt, Mrs. Henry Haupt.

A Delightful Social Gathering.

On Tuesday evening the socially inclined young people of Milesburg,—and there is no place where such pleasures are indulged in to a greater extent—sojourned to the home of Mr. F. T. Wallace, Sr., which is located immediately above Milesburg. Miss Ida Stevenson, of Lock Haven is the guest of the Misses Wallace, and she with her fair hostesses, Misses Mary, Maggie and Ethel Wallace—most cordially received the guests, the occasion being in honor of their guest, Miss Stevenson.

The bright and congenial company present, in addition to the four already named, were Misses Bertha Swyers, Ella Wagner, Ida Orris, Florence Orris, Claudia Smith, and Mary Smith of Milesburg; Minnie Swiers of Pittsburg; Iva Thomas, of Philadelphia., and Messrs. R. H. Smith, Chas. W. Wright, Walter Smith, H. I. Bouse, Charles Haupt, W. O. Greene and Boyd Stonerode, of Milesburg.

Enjoyment seemed to be spontaneous and not a minute of time was dull or monotonous. During the evening very interesting games were played and the time passed very quickly, the company departing at a reasonably early hour

Veteran Club Picnic Postponed.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Veteran Club of Centre county, held on Saturday, the 27th of this month, the matter of holding the annual basket picnic at Philipsburg, this year, was fully discussed by the members present. On motion, it was unanimously agreed to postpone the picnic until the usual time next year. After some discussion on business generally the meeting was, by motion, adjourned, subject to a call by the Secretary.

He Knew Patrick McGhee.

July 30, 1889.

DEAR SIR. In the daily issue of 25th the soldier you speak of as Peter McGhee, who died at Beech Creek, Clinton county, was Patrick McGhee, who was formerly a private in Company D, 45th regiment, Penn'a Vols. I knew him well while in the service. He belonged to the same regiment as myself and was an excellent soldier. The amount of pension received is about correct as I was the Attorney on his claim. Yours

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, overcomes That Tired Feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

In Court Monday Morning.

There was a great deal of preliminary business in court Monday morning before the important case, that of the proceedings against Mr. Teller to revoke his license, was entered upon.

Mr. Hughes had no further testimony to offer. Mr. Love, of counsel for Mr. Teller, asked that the testimony be stricken out. Mr. Peale did the same.

Mr. Love appealed to a jury of his peers, and did not believe his client should be placed in jeopardy twice. Asked that it be postponed until August session of court. The revocation of the license, says the court, is not part of the penalty.

Mr. Peale put particular stress on the language "by conviction" in the Act of Assembly. The testimony can he submitted only to a court and jury. They are not called upon to meet it here. May it please the court, this case can go to a jury—this case SHALL go to a jury until his client is acquitted. Mr. Peale's favorite phrase in his speech was "slopping over!"

Frank Williams was the first witness called. He got several drinks there before he was of age.

Phil McGinley got liquor there last fall; never drank any at the bar. Got wine there and drank it, got it in a bottle.

Mitch Cunningham, the bar tender at Bush House, been there about three years. Mr Teller always very strict in selling liquor.

A Touching Incident.

Miss Willard sends us this incident: "At Erie, Pa., in the all-day prayer-meeting of the W. C. T. U., on voting day, I heard a lady speak as follows: "I was asking a business man in our city to cast his ballot for the amendment. He is good hearted, but had not heard our argument, and he replied, "Madam, if you should go into the valley of Johnstown and advocate the total amendment, those people would say, 'Give us strong drink any day; it never produces such a tragedy as we had here!" and enough they'd try to drown you because you dared ask them to vote in favor of cold water.' 'But,' continued the lady, 'I said to this man: Listen; a woman's voice in the midst of that awful flood, sang:

"Other refuge have I none,
Hangs my helpless soul on Thee!"

her voice stopped suddenly, her song was finished in eternity. Our Heavenly Father owns both sides of the river of death, and she has passed across to the fairer, safer side: but did you ever know one who was carried down by the flood of strong drink to leave this world singing a song of loving faith as that woman did in the storm and darkness?' and the good natured man who was only careless, but not wicked, exclaimed, 'My God! I never thought of that!"

A Bible In the Flood.

The Pittsburg Despatch relates the following remarkable incident:

Three young men strolling along the river bank in Milvale borough the other evening, saw lying in the sand a Bible, all tattered and torn. One gave the book a kick, the second man did the same thing, but the third reproved his companions for such a lack of respect toward the Bible, at the same time picking it up, meaning to reserve it as a relic. After he had examined it he found it was a family Bible with a complete record of the family history of a Mrs. Catharine Davis, of Johnstown, Pa.

That evening while he was speaking about the finding of the Bible to a friend, the question was asked what name the Bible contained, and to the inquirers' utter amazement he found the Bible to belong to his wife's mother, who was drowned in the flood. This gentleman was Mr. John Wood, of Lawrenceville. His wife is the daughter of the late Mrs. Davis, of Johnstown, and the Bible had floated down from the wrecked city. On the same evening, Mrs. Wood identified the book and it was received by her as a legacy from her dead mother, coming to her in a most providential way.

Very Appropriate.

The Enterprise, Kansas, Independent publishes the following: One of our Sunday school teachers on a recent occasion told her pupils that when they put their pennies into the contribution box she wanted each one to repeat a Bible verse suitable for the occasion. The first boy dropped a cent saying; "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." The next boy dropped his cent into the box saying; "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." The third and youngest boy dropped his penny saying: "A fool and his money is soon parted."

The Act Against Cigarettes.

The following is the text of the act passed by the late legislature concerning the selling of cigarettes:

That if any person or persons shall sell cigarettes to any person or persons under the age of sixteen years, he or she so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than three hundred dollars.

Soldiers' Orphans' Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Soldiers' Orphans' Sixteeners will be held at Harrisburg, August 21st and 23 inclusive. Graduates of Soldiers' Orphans' Homes comprise the membership. The first reunion was held in 1881. There are about 400 members of the association.

—It is said that the custom is becoming too generally prevalent of going on picnic excursions on Sunday. People can be seen every Sunday in the large conveyances on their way to the woods. If people are so careless as not to know that such proceedings are an offense against the proper observance of Sunday, we wish our liverymen would arouse to a knowledge of the fact, and would refuse to lease their conveyances to parties who are going merely on Sunday pleasure excursions.

—The afternoon train at 4.30 on Saturday brought Company B home from the camp at Bedford. The new Lieutenant Colonel, Mr. Amos Mullen, accompanied them. They were in command of Lieutenant Reber. They marched as usual, from the station to the Diamond, and back again to the Armory. The boys looked weary and their looks were not deceptive. They said they had a pleasant time, but nevertheless did not care to go to war again.

—The dates for the county fairs have all been fixed. The Pennsylvania State fair will be held from September 24th to October 9 and that at Williams Grove from August 26 to 31. There will be altogether seventy fairs in the State and it will be impossible for political candidates to attend all of them. We notice that the Union county fair will be from September 24 to 27.

—Barnum is really going to take his immense show to Europe. The vessels in which the show will sail have already been chartered. Whether Barnum will outrival Buffalo Bill remains to be seen. By the way, while we are talking about Buffalo Bill it is apropos to state that Bill has received 30 proposals of marriage from rich Paris girls within a year.

New Connection for Bedford Springs via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the benefit of visitors to Bedford Springs, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces that the Mail Express leaving Pittsburg at 1.00 P. M. will connect through to Bedford on week-days, reaching that point at an early hour of the evening.

This arrangement greatly improves the service to this very popular resort, as residents of towns along the line of the road can leave home after dinner and arrive at Bedford for supper.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

The makers of the Ivory Soap have been engaged in the manufacture of Soaps for over fifty years, and the "Ivory" is the happy result of their long experience, and is unquestionably the soap to be used by all who value the advice (quoted below) of Ellen H. Richards, Instructor in Chemistry, Woman's Laboratory, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who says, "In the purchase of soap, it is "safest to choose the make of some well known and long established "firm who have a reputation to lose if their product is not good."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

How Long will you Live?

From a comparison of the various statistical tables it appears that the occupation most conducive to longevity is that of merchants. Next to these in expectation of life coming farmers, then follow in succession doctors, lawyers, shopkeepers and hotelkeepers. Brokers follow next to hotel-keepers as regards average length of life, and then mechanics, while the last on the list, ranking even after those engaged in occupations which are classed as 'hazardous and unhealthy,' are clerks and persons engaged in wholly sedentary occupation. The statistics show that one of the chief causes of the short duration of insurance for this class is the prevalence among them of consumption, which causes the death of almost one-third of the total number.

As these statistics are based upon 2,000 cases watched during the last twenty-six years they are of considerable value, but they are not by any means conclusive.

Took off His Under Lip.

Eight years ago a cancer came on my lower lip. I had it cut out while it was yet small, and it healed up apparently, but very soon broke out again, and commenced eating very rapidly. It took off my under lip from one side to the other, and down to my chin. I had it treated by burning, and got so weak that I did not think that I could stand it much longer. After much suffering I discarded all other treatment, and began taking Swif 's Specific, and the cancer soon began to heal, and in a short time it was completely healed and I was entirely well. It is now over three years since I got well, and there has been no sign of any return of the disease. I know it was cancer, and I know it was cured alone by S. S. S. E. V. FERRAND, Ruston, La.

S. S. S. cured me of malignant sore throat and mouth, caused by impure blood. The trouble extended down to my left lung, which was very sore. The doctors practiced on me for three years without relief, when I left them and took S. S. S. Four bottles cured me.

—The Cambria Iron Company has learned a lesson by the recent flood at Johnstown and now propose to turn the lesson to account. They own a large farming tract of land on Yoder Hill, just west of the town and propose to lay out about 500 acres in pleasant building lots, which will have also streets and alleys, graded, paved and macadamized. They purpose to open out the property in sections, one after the other as they may be needed, for the benefit of their employes. The hilltop is 567 feet higher than the Pennsylvania railroad station, and fully 1,751 feet above sea level. The Company's plan is to build an incline plane from near the centre of the new town, and reach the lots from the works in about a stretch of half a mile. The town will have water and gas mains laid and an efficient sewerage system introduced, whilst stringent provisions will be made prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors. Religious and educational buildings will be erected, and a site provided for building thereon a large hotel. It will help to solve the problem of the future of Johnstown.

A Sample of a Woman's Nerve.

Providence Telegram.

Three women sat in one of the open cars and chattered like three blackbirds over a new hill of corn, until one of them wanted to leave. She signaled the conductor, and when the car stopped she arose and talked for a couple of minutes, with several "good byes" a "tell Mary—," and wound up by saying: "Be sure and come Tuesday," as she stepped off. The coductor snapped his bell with a profane pull and the car started, when the woman who had alighted commenced to wave her hands and halloa to the conductor. He supposed she had forgotten something on the seat and pulled the bell to stop with a vicious jerk that plainly said d—n, while the woman ran up to the side of the car and in eager tones said to her friends: "If you can't come Tuesday come on Wednesday." That car started with a jerk that made the lamps rattled, and the conductor made remarks under his breath that would have equaled "the army of Flanders," while the woman settled her bustle and walked away.

One Summer at Cape Cod I was remarking on the color of a woman's ear-rings, and she informed me they were some her husband brought from sea—they were made of "the liver of Mount Vociferous."

Tweedle and Tweedledum.—Hubby: I do wish that baby next door would keep quiet. It's yelling is a terrible nuisance.' Wifey: 'Why, John, that's not the Smiths' baby. It's ours, in the back room.' Hubby: 'Is that so? The dear little darling.'

A Natural Conclusion.—'We are all worms,' exclaimed the preacher in his sermon. And little Bobby, who was following the discourse attentively, whispered to his mother: 'Then that's the reason why the great big fish swallowed Jonah, isn't it, mamma?'

A commercial traveller who occupied the same car with a clergyman, asked him if he had ever heard that in Paris as often as a priest was hanged a donkey was hanged at the same time. The victim of the joke replied in his blandest manner, 'Well, then, let us both be thankful that we are not in Paris.'

HE DESERVED A FULL BASKET.—A certain Maine judge was on the bench when word came that the trout were biting at Weld Pond, and he had a case on the docket for trial. It was a divorce case between an aged couple who had lived together for forty years and now wanted to be released from the bonds of matrimony. There were many witnesses, and the judge foresaw that if the case came to trial it would be four or five days before he could get away, so he sent for the couple and talked the matter over. He gave them good advice, and they finally agreed to try once more to live together in harmony and went away happy. The next morning the judge started for Weld, and last Friday he landed a twelve pound salmon. If our judges did less divorcing and more fishing, perhaps society would be quite well off.—Lewistown (Me.) Journal.

MANUFACTURERS VICTORIOUS.

BEATEN UNTIL THE LAST INNING, THEY MAKE A GRAND RALLY AND WREST VICTORY FROM DEFEAT

On Friday afternoon the best game of base ball, this season, was played on the field near the Glass Works. It was between nines composed of lawyers and manufacturers, respectively. Soon after 2 o'clock the game called, there being about five hundred spectators present and the grand stand was filled with ladies, it being the largest demonstration in favor of the National game which we have noticed in Bellefonte.

The lawyers were first given permission to handle the ash while the iron manufacturers and others looked at them from the field. Mr. Kittell was in the pitcher's box, but nevertheless Messrs. Kurtz, Kuhn and and Quigley successively found the ball and succeeded in encircling the Diamond. The disciples of Blackstone were retired with three to their credit and the outs went in determined to run up the score to such a degree that the lawyers would give up at once. But "there's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip," and several slips were made in the effort to score. McKnight was the only lucky one. Kittell reached third, Munson, with Harris to do the running act for him, obligingly knocked the ball into the first baseman's hands, Montgomery made a 2 bagger, and Harry Valentine found the ball a deception and a snare. When the manufacturers were retired they found the chances against them.

In the second inning the lawyers increased their score at an alarming rate, Kurtz, Kuhn, Quigley, Hamill and Orvis reaching the home plate. Of course, they felt as if victory was already theirs and smiled triumphantly when their opponents gained only 3, making the score 8 to 4 in the lawyers' favor.

Col. D. S. Keller called time and, gathering the players around him, he made a brief address, presenting a gold watch and chain to Mr. Kittell, the captain of the manufacturers. Mr. K. replied by saying that though manufacturers could not make speeches they could play ball. He attached the jewelry to his hat band so that it could be visible to and inspire all his followers and to make the watch "go" as fast as he did.

Just what effect this incident had on the play may be known when the two innings that followed were marked by quick, short and decisive plays. The batters marched to the plate, they grasped the ash, occasionally they touched the leather and one or two of them reached the bases, but they were invariably put out and the game reached the fifth inning without any increase in the score. The game changed and in the fifth each side added two to their credit. In the sixth the lawyers scored one while the manufacturers nested on the goose egg. The seventh was a repetition of the 3d and 4th. In the eighth the lawyers made 3 and the manufacturers 2. When the lawyers retired from the bat in the ninth they had added four, giving them the score of 18 to 8.

These are the figures which the manufacturers had to look straight in the eye when they came up for their last chance. But they were determined and confident, while something seemed to have rattled the lawyers. The brilliant playing of the manufacturers here was quite startling and produced an electrical effect on the audience. Francis Speer made cruel remarks to Pitcher Hamill and the small boys yelled and flung their hats in the air. Meanwhile, the men at the bat knocked the ball all over the field and kept the bases occupied to their fullest extent all the time. Even Harry Valentine drew himself together and showed what he could do and made his first two grand rounds to see how far it was between bases. It became likely that the manufacturers would tie the score, nay there was the possibility that they would lead, and when the eleventh man came in, making their score 19, they considered it victory enough for one day and although there were yet two men on bases, all the players left the field and the game was ended after 2 hours and 50 minutes.

NOTES.

Two very excellent double plays were made—Curtin to Graham and Graham to Munson.

James Hughes acted as umpire, and, as usual, was fair, impartial and his work gave satisfaction. George Meek was scorer.

Mr. Graham fell and became lame during the latter part of the game, and was substituted by Mr. Hull, who did good work.

The score by innings is as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Lawyers	3	5	0	0	2	1	0	3	4	—18
Manufacturers	1	3	0	0	2	0	0	2	11	—19

The players and positions are as follows: Lawyers—Kurtz, s s; Kuhn, 1st b; Quigley, c; Hamill, p; Orvis, 2d b; Cooke, 3d b; Noll, lf; Spangler, rf; Meyer, cf. Manufacturers—McKnight, c; Kittell, p; Munson, 1st b; Montgomery, lf Valentine, cf; Curtin s s; Orbison, 3d b; Graham, 2d b; Harris, rf.

The lawyers cannot comprehend just how it was done and they will quickly challenge their opponents for another game.

An Incident at a Picnic.

Two couples sit together happy as can be. Two gentlmen leave their ladies and go to the ice cream tables. "That's mean!" exclaim the ladies; "let's leave now." Soon the ladies are in company with other beaux. They look back and see that the first mentioned gentlemen have returned with supplies of ice cream on a tray and are surprised to find the ladies gone. But ladies cannot return. Soon, however, they meet again and apologies and explantions follow. Now, they are happy again. Gentlemen, don't leave so unceremoneously next time. Ladies, hereafter, "look before you leap."

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise—A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver and Kidneys, will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. —Will drive Malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all Malarial fevers.—For cure of Headache, Constipation and indigestion try Electric Bitters—entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.—Price 50 cts. and $1.00 per bottle at W C Keplinger & Co's Drugstore.

—It is strange that some enterprising individual does not get possession of a grove some where in this vicinity and fit it up for picnic purposes. The erection of a couple of large buildings on the grounds would be one necessary item in its proper arrangement, also a speaker's stand and a couple of patent swings. Water could be conveyed to the grounds at but little expense. Other arrangements, such as the construction of tennis courts, etc., could be made as desired. Would it not be a grand investment for some one connected with the Buffalo Run railroad to own a picnic ground of this kind. With such picnic grounds to go to people need not hesitate to attend even such a day as this as the time can be passed quite pleasantly in a covered building in the event of a rain storm.

Why Should I

not have confidence in that which has done me a world of good? If you had suffered years with liver complaint and got cured by using Sulphur Bitters would not you too have confidence in them? J R NASH, Hotel Winthrop, Boston.

The True Banana.

According to Science the true eating banana is unknown in our markets and the bananas used here as a fruit are only used for cooking purposes. The eating banana is the madura and there are many varieties of it. The smaller are the more delicious; and the smallest of all, the so-called "lady-finger banana," with a skin hardly thicker than paper, is the most highly prized. Green looking bananas are peeled and roasted in the ashes and are boiled, for a few minutes with one skin on, and eaten with syrup or honey; and ripe ones are sliced lengthwise, and fried in olive oil or butter.

Short Line Railroad.

The object of the men at the head of the Bellefonte and Eastern Railway is to build the shortest route possible from the Clearfield coal fields to Philadelphia and New York. They have been discussing the railroad for about three years and it is said that they will take the route through Sugar valley. A party of Chicago and New York capitalists are looking in this direction also for a short line outlet to the eastern seaboard, which will strike either Sugar or Bald Eagle valleys.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS

Of Temperance Pass a Very Pleasant Day in the Shady Grove.

The Sons of Temperance of Milesburg held a grand picnic in Hunter's woods on Friday, the number of persons in attendance being about one hundred. The party departed from Milesburg on the 9.22 a. m. train and journeyed to Bellefonte, from whence they were transferred on a special on the Buffalo Run railroad, arriving at Hunter's woods about 10 o'clock.

A game of base ball was soon in progress, in which the boys engaged while the young ladies were preparing the dinner. This repast was a most sumptuous and elegant affair. Your correspondent had the pleasure of dining with Mr. Jones, and we can say that as banquet makers the ladies of the Jones family are par excellence. The proceedings before dinner and the entertainment during the feast were of the kind which none could fail to enjoy and that all the participants who gathered around the banqueting board had cultivated appetites which made them relish the picnic feast was apparent by the rapid disappearance of the delicious viands.

The dinner came to an end all too soon and there followed the usual diversions of a picnic occasion. One kind of game followed another in quick succession, each seeming to be more interesting than that which had preceded it.

Each one present exerted himself or herself for the entertainment of the others and the result could not be other than perfectly successful. Persons to whose management the pleasures of the day are largely due are Messrs. L T Eddy, C H Else, W H Musser, J C P Jones, Rev. G W Bouse and Mr. Geo. Taylor.

The party had arranged to depart on the special to make connection with the train to Milesburg, and the hour for saying farewell to the picnic grove came all too soon. But the enjoyment of the occasion lasted until each one had bid his companion farewell, and let us hope that the rich viands partaken of during the day did not do their part toward disturbing the dreams of night, but that instead the enjoyments lingered in mind, giving pleasure to the dreams and making yet more lasting the remembrance, of the event.

CONSIDERABLE is said about the failure of the London police to arrest "Jack the Ripper." It does seem like an evidence of stupidity on their part. But it is nothing in comparison with the failure to arrest the prize fighters in this country. There were four governors giving to sheriffs and others the most minute instructions to arrest the men; there were 3,000 people in attendance; it was well known where the fight would occur; and yet the remarkable result followed that both of the principals and all connected with the fight escaped. You see the circumstances in regard to publicity are in favor of the prize fighters and yet it is evident that the sheriff and his deputies were careful to keep away from the scene of the fray. Then talk not of "Jack the Ripper."

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. H C Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says; "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at W C Keplinger & Co's Drugstore.

The Wedding Ceremony Which United Mr. Calvin Pifer and Miss Rosie Williams.

THE EVENT WITNESSED BY A VAST THRONG OF SPECTATORS.

A wedding of exceptional interest took place on Thursday evening. All day Thursday it was the talk of the town and society was on the tip toe of expectation.

Long before 8 o'clock hundreds of people wended their way to the A. M. E. church and that edifice was soon filled. The eager multitude that could not get inside perched themselves wherever they could on Half Moon hill and looked in the windos. When the guests were all assembled they were equal in personnel and distingue to any audience which ever assembled on any similar occasion. In dress and other respects there was a commingling of bright color which was beautiful to behold. Mingling among them and conspicuous in their dress coats and elaborate white shirt fronts were the four handsome ushers—Lincoln Hare, Aaron Johnson, John Emory and A. B. Jackson. But their efforts to usher such a great audience were futile.

The wedding party, brilliant in beauty arrived in a special carriage. The bride was Miss Rosie Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Williams, of this place. She is an estimable young lady and an ornament to the circle in which she moves. The gentleman who wooed and won her and on Thursday night claimed her for his own is Mr. Calvin Pifer, the principal waiter in the Brockerhoff House. He has been in Bellefonte about two years and has won many friends by his excellent and genteel deportment. Not only did he win friends, but also a life companion, who said that she would serve and obey him as a good wife should.

When the wedding party moved up the isle to the music of the wedding march, the bride and groom were well supported by two each of bridesmaids and groomsmen. First bridesmaid was Miss Nettie Wilson; second, Miss Helen Mills. First groomsman, Mr. Quin Mills; second, Wm. Green. The bride wore a cream colored costume en traine and orange blossoms; her maids wore one dainty blue, the other pink. The groom and his assistants were in the conventional black. Rev. C. H. Brown, the pastor, performed the ceremony in his impressive manner, every word being distinctly uttered. He was assisted by Rev. Charles Garner. The ceremony was long and impressive and the aprty comported themselves with that dignity which befitted the occasion. It was plainly evident by the countenance of every unmarried person in the room that they were wonderfully anxious to step up to the minister and be married, too, and we just felt like suggesting that they hurry up their court ships, because they are all of no avail unless they culminate in a wedding like this one did. To the lively time of the wedding march the party retired from the church and as soon as decorum would permit the audience flocked out after them. The evening hours were spent in a grand reception at the home of Mrs. Levi Pennington, the bride's sister. The wedding presents were useful, costly and appropriate. We most earnestly hope that the auspicious circumstances amid which this blissful couple plighted their troth may be a sure index to the happy circumstances which shall envron all their lives.

Plenty of Pig Iron.

The reports just received by the American Iron and Steel Association show that the production of pig iron during the first six months of 1889 was very much larger than the production during the last six months of 1888. Put into tabular form, the showing is as follows:

	Production in tons.	In stock, tons.
Last half 1888	3,886,004	390,144
First half 1889	4,107,899	502,934
Increase	221,895	202,790

The States that show an increase in production are Alabama, Connecticut, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin; those showing a decrease are Colorado, Georgia, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Carolina and Texas. The former list, it will be seen, includes all the great iron-producing States. Alabama and Tennessee show the greatest increase in the South, and New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania in the North.

In this comparison it must be remembered that the production of 1888 was large. Four million tons is a large amount. In 1880 the total production for the year was only about four million tons; and the present semi-annual product is unprecedented in size. If "pig iron and prosperity" go together in this country, then this is certainly a prosperous year.

On Solid Rock.

Some people were afraid that the Lutherans were erecting their church in a place where they could not reach solid rock. But people need not imagine that the Lutherans will be foolish enough to build on the sand. They want their church to endure and to withstand all the floods and winds, so it will be founded on solid rock. To prove what we say, permit us to inform our readers that they struck bed rock on Thursday at a depth of thirteen feet. This was even better than they expected.

Complications Following the Clearfield Murder Case.

The murder which was committed in the mountain fastnesses of Clearfield county, last February, has connected with it international complications, in which the Austrian Hungarian authorities seem to be acting very properly.

At the time there was a Hungarian wedding. John Lazeny, of Morrisdale, was the groom. He is a Hungarian coal miner, and all the guests were that nationality. The hilarity was great, and, before the night waned, disorder could no longer be mistaken for joy. A fight was commenced which ended in a general riot. Joseph Loksa received such terrible injuries that he died on the following day. Although the guests had scattered very hurriedly, but few of them were to be seen the next day. The Clearfield county officers arrested John Ivan and George Murin for the assault upon Loksa.

Some of the Hungarians who were guests have never been seen in the Clearfield coal regions since the affray. In the meantime relatives of the murdered man at Morrisdale have been telling their relatives in Hungary, by their usual social letters.

It so happened that very soon after the fatal wedding, two of the Clearfield county miners who had witnessed both the marriage and the assault, turned up in a little community in Austria-Hungary called Szilvas Ujfalu. Their names are Andrew Ivan and Stefen Toma. Relatives of the murdered Joseph Loksa live in the same village, and the letters they received from time to time from Morrisdale, Clearfield county, finally led them to cause the arrest of Andrew Ivan and Toma by the Hungarian Government.

Justice in the case can not be meted out without their evidence and Max Schamberg the Austria Hungarian Consul at Pittsburg is interceding to have the escaped witnesses returned to Clearfield, and, although there is no requirement of international law to compel their return, he will likely be successful. The result will be regarded with interest.

An Excursion Extraordinary.

What is called a poor man's excursion is being organized and it promises to be the most enjoyable of the season. While it will suit the small pocket book, it will be full of pleasure, instruction and profit. The plan is to take a tent, a horse, a cook and some provisions. The horse will carry the tent and every member of the party will walk. They will likely go to Bedford Springs, taking the journey by easy stages and stopping to fish, and hunt where and when they please pitching the tent at night for rest. They will stay as long as they please at Bedford and will return home by another route. If anyone gets tired and wants to ride he will be put on the cars and sent home. We will tell you more about this pedestrian pleasure trip as the arrangements progress.

—For the benefit of the M. E. Sunday school of Ross church, a harvest home picnic and festival will be held in the grove at Marengo, on Saturday, August 3. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. Wharton and I. C. M. Ellenberger. Music will be furnished by the Baileyville band and vocal performers. Among other interesting pastimes, two games of base ball will be played. In the morning, Gatesburg vs. State College; in the afternoon, Gatesburg vs. Pine Grove. The festival will be continued during the evening.

—Hot weather makes corn grow and man sweat, and comes in just right. We cannot get along without it. The beautiful women lay around gracefully in hammocks, with light flowing robes and hair neglige, (that's all right, we cannot get along without them,) the boy puts on his annual barefeet, while the men stand on the shady side of the street, talk about everything, mop their faces and are happy.

—Typhoid fever has made a terrible stride through one family at Sharon. Mrs. Charles Dahringer died of it yesterday morning. Her husband and their six children are now ill. Three of the children cannot recover. Mr. Dahringer is able to be around, but the work of caring for his striken family is telling on him. The youngest of the family, an eight months old baby, will recover.

—The Washington Post manifests its disgust in emphatic words: "It is a great thing to sit in the shadow of a flag that protects you and abuse it. It is only an American flag that gathers the refuse of earth and guarantees them the privilege of denouncing it. It is only an American city that would furnish policemen to protect a body of men who met to advocate anarchy and religion."

—A dispatch says that a representative of the Vanderbilts, on Tuesday purchased the interests of a number of heavy local stockholders in the Beech Creek Coal Company. Over $3,000,000 were involved in the transaction. The Vanderbilts are now sole owners of the Beech Creek railroad.

CLEARFIELD'S BEGINNING.

The Borough Owes Much to the Memory of Abram Witmer.

The Clearfield Raftman's Journal has recently been publishing some interesting local reminiscences, and the following will be read with pleasure by many people here who are descendents of the persons named:

Away back in 1805 Roland Curtin, John Fleming and James Smith, joint commissioners for Centre and Clearfield counties, came across the mountain from Bellefonte to look up a site for a county seat. They examined the land of a colored man named Samuel Boyd, lying between the river and the mouth of Clearfield creek, and which is now the farm of John F. Weaver; the land of Abram Witmer, two miles further up the river; the land of Martin Hoover, three miles above Witmer's property, and which is now the farm of Leander Denning; the land of Paul Clover, near where Curwensville is now located.

They finally settled upon Martin Hoover's farm as being the most desirable place to erect the county buildings, and accordingly went there to enter into negotiations with Mr. Hoover. They, however, found the sturdy pioneer immovable. He utterly refused to listen to their proposition, saying that his farm was too good to be spoiled by the erection of county buildings upon it! So the nonplussed Commissioners did the next best thing by taking their second choice. They came back down the river and easily struck a bargain with the enterprising "Lancaster Dutchman," Abram Witmer, upon whose land was located the old Indian village Chinchaclamoose.

Here the town of Clearfield was laid out sixteen blocks square, in the bend of the West Branch of the Susquehanna, including the site of the old Indian village. With characteristic enterprise Witmer donated to the county, as near as practicable in the centre of this plot ground for the Court House and jail; also for the use of the town ground for a market house and for an academy. First street, running in a straight line, touched the river at the northern and southern limits of the town plot, leaving an irregular strip of ground bordering on the river. Witmer, not satisfied with what he had already done for the town, cut off two triangular pieces of ground, one at each end of this irregular strip, and donated them for the use of the people as public parks.

To Drive Away Flies,

I haven't a mosquito bar nor a screen door about my house, says Herbert A. Finley, in the St. Louis Globe Democrat, and yet there are seldom any flies and never any mosquitoes about it. I learned the secret of successful warfare against these pests when living in the swamps of Louisiana, where, summer or winter, mosquitoes swarm. For some years life was unendurable, and no meal could be eaten in peace. But all at once there was a change for the better. Bars and screens were often out of place, but there was almost an immunity from insects. I was batching at the time, and had just changed my colored boy. The newcomer explained to me how he kept the "critters" away. He burnt small pieces of gum camphor on the cook stove, and used a secret preperation he called "sudekillo." When I got married and came to Missouri I imparted the secret to my wife, and as there is no patent on it that I know of, I would advise all fellow sufferers to go and do likewise. The gum camphor is ample for the purpose, and need only be used two or three times a day.

Knights of the Golden Eagle.

The following are the officers of Port Matilda castle, No. 219, of Port Matilda, for the ensuing six months' term: Past chief, S. U. Harshberger; noble chief, D. J. Richards; vice chief, A. J. Johnson; high priest, W. G. L. Crain; venerable hermit, A. S. Williams; master of records, R. D. Ardery; clerk of exchequer, G. J. Woodring; keeper exchequer, A. Y. Williams; sir Herald, H. C. Woodring; worthy bard, William Vaughn; worthy chamberlain, Martin Cowpher; ensign, H. H. Osman; esquire, Grant Jones; first guardsman, W. J. Wiser; second guardsman, William Lewis; trustee, W. G. L. Crain; representative to the grand castle, Bion Williams. The membership is sixty-four. Admission during the past six months] eight. Amount paid for relief $7. Amount of funds on hand and invested $272.01.

—A correspondent writes in regard to that pest of the pantry, red ants, that they cannot travel over wool or rag carpet. I covered my floor with coarse baize, set my sofa on that, and have not been troubled since. Cover a shelf in your closet or pantry with flannel, set whatever you wish to keep from the ants on it, and they will at once disappear. I have tried it.

—For the care taken to the flower beds and all the surroundings at the station the public and the railroad company are under obligations to the watchman who is there during the day. He cleans the grounds, cuts the grass around the flower beds and never misses watering the growing plants.

—Some one has taken the trouble to find out how far a farmer has to walk to put in and attend forty acres of corn. To plow the ground with a sixteen inch three-horse plow, he travels 350 miles; to harrow the ground thoroughly before planting he walks 50 miles; to cultivate it afterwards he will have to travel 300 miles, making a grand total of 700 miles without the gathering.

Reflections and Suggestions.

America should have a tower a few feet higher than the Eiffel tower in Paris.

Water spouts seem to be less numerous and we breathe free again.

To tell the truth, if there must be great floods and fires it is much better for them to occur in China than in this country.

—The friends of James Lehr, of Pittsburg, who killed young Scott, at the camp near Confluence, Somerset county, on Sunday night, say that he has always been subject to fits of temporary insanity. His stepfather, Mr. J. M. May, says he has always been queer. He boarded recently with a family named Hall, of Federal street, Allegheny, and they all say that the young man is subject to fits of temporary insanity and has recently had quite a number of them.

—The death of Alexander Johnston, professor of political economy at Princeton college, deprives the country of a most entertaining and powerful writer on politico-historic and politico-economic topics. Professor Johnston's knowledge of the history of political parties in this country was deep and accurate, and he had the faculty of presenting topics not entertaining of themselves in a way which rendered them extremely interesting.

—Hope Fire Company, No. 2, of Philipsburg, has received an invitation to be the guest of the Union Fire Company at Carlisle, during the time the Firemen's Convention is held in that city. The Union Fire Company is one hundred years old and at the same time celebrates its centennial, while the Philipsburg Company is but two years old, making a decided contrast in age.

PURELY VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL — D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA — TUREK

VINEGAR BITTERS

The Only Non-Alcoholic Vegetable Medicine put up in Liquid Form ever discovered.

It is not a vile fancy drink made of rum, poor whisky, or refuse liquors, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, but a purely vegetable preparation, made from native California herbs.

Twenty-five years' use have demonstrated to millions of sufferers throughout the civilized world, that of all the medicines ever discovered Vinegar Bitters only possesses perfect and wonderful curative effects upon those troubled with the following diseases, viz:

Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Headache, Boils, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Jaundice, Gout, Piles, Biliousness, and all other diseases arising from blood impurities, and as a Vermifuge it is the best in the world, being death to all worms that infest the human system.

It is always safe to take at any time, or under any condition of the system, for old or young or for either sex. It is put up in two styles. The old is slightly bitter, and is the stronger in cathartic effect. The new style is very pleasant to the taste and a perfect medicine for delicate women or children. Each kind is distinctly marked on top of cartoon.

Many families keep both kinds on hand, as they form a complete medicine chest.

As a Family Medicine, for the use of ladies, children and men of sedentary habits, the New Style Vinegar Bitters has no equal in the world. It is invaluable for curing the ills that beset childhood, and gently regulates the diseases to which women at every period of life are subject.

Ladies, get a bottle from your druggist and try it. If your druggist has not the New Style Vinegar Bitters, ask him to send for it. If you once try it you will never be without this priceless remedy in the house.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

The only Temperance Bitters known. It stimulates the Brain and quiets the Nerves, regulates the Bowels and renders a perfect circulation through the human veins, which is sure to restore perfect health.

GEO W DAVIS, of 169 Barrone St., New Orleans, La., writes under date May 26th, 1888, as follows: "I have been going to the Hot Springs, Ark., for fifteen years for an itching humor in my blood. I have just used three bottles of Vinegar Bitters, and it has done me more good than the springs. It is the best medicine made."

JOSEPH J. EGAN, of No. 75 West St., New York, says: "Have not been without Vinegar Bitters for the past twelve years and consider it a whole medicine chest in our family."

MRS. MATTIE FURGUSON, of Dryden, N. Y., says: "Vinegar Bitters is the best medicine I ever tried; it saved my life."

T. F. BAILEY, of Humboldt, Iowa, says: Vinegar Bitters cured me of paralysis ten years ago, and recently it cured me of rheumatism."

VINEGAR BITTERS.

The Great Blood and Health Restorer. Cures all kinds of Headache, also Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

Bellefonte Republican,

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor

Local Department.

—Good-by, old postage stamp, your head
Will not much more be seen,
While your successor will be red,
Your memory will be green.
—Omaha World,

—There were 513 men at the Fifth regiment camp.

—There are now over 600 guests at Bedford Springs.

—High temperature prevails, but it is exceedingly pleasant.

—The Reformed Sunday-school picnic is on Thursday, August 8.

—The camp at Mt. Gretna this year will be known as Camp Sneridan.

—When a locomotive knocks a cow from the track there is a lively milk shake.

—Two Swedes—Otto and John Olason—were drowned in the river at Curwensville on Sunday.

—Robert Given, of Walker township, Huntingdon county, died of paralysis on Saturday, aged 79 years.

—Only about half of the church services were in progress on Sunday, but they were well attended.

—If any one disobeys the law prosecute him; that's the only way to secure reverence and respect for law.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chase, of Philipsburg, are at present in town. Mrs. C. was formerly Miss Mamie Guy.

—Saturday was a lively day. Farmers who had been working for three weeks took a day off and came to town.

—If the demands of the Westmoreland county cokers are not granted by August 1 the men will go on a strike.

—It's all the fashion now to spend a day working in the harvest fields and then to return home and brag about how much you are tanned.

—Now that Princess Louis is happily married, let some Bellefonte maiden do likewise, and have even a handsomer wedding than that of the Princess.

—It is quite customary for ministers to take vacations, but we don't believe his Satanic Majesty ever indulges in any such recreation from his regular work.

—We are sorry to hear that Mr. A. B. Steele was hurt on Saturday while at work, a man who was using the hammer somewhat carelessly bringing it in contact with his leg.

—A man named Gallagher, working at the lime kilns, was quite badly hurt about a week ago. His hand was broken by being hit with a sledge in the hands of a fellow workman.

—Bierley Bros. will soon commence to operate their new dydraulic cider press, which will make four gallons of cider to the bushel, instead of only three gallons as was formerly the way.

—A general meeting will be held in the Y M C A hall at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. All are invited. The young men's orchestra has consented to perform on that occasion and F. Potts Green, Esq., will conduct the exercises.

The Bellefonte Republican and Phil's Weekly Press one year for $1.50 if paid strictly in advance. This gives our readers as much reading in every issue as could be purchased at a book store for the money these papers cost for the entire year.

—A dangerous counterfeit one dollar silver certificate is in circulation. It is well executed and almost perfect, but the scroll work on the back is blurred and very poor. The bill is easily torn, and there is the absence of silk threads in the paper.

—Mrs. Sarah Reimer, of Boalsburg, the aged mother of Mrs. David Glenn of this place, has had a slight attack of illness this week, but is now improving. The lady is 94 years old and very active. She is one of the oldest residents of Centre county.

—Dr. A. W. Hafer was 44 years old on Monday. Notwithstanding it was his birthday, the Doctor was very busy all day. He is experencing a rush of business which forbids him taking many holidays even on such important occasions as birthdays.

—Mr. R A Beck is about making another improvement in his barber shop. He will construct a large and handsome fan just above the chair at which he works. The fan will sway gently to and fro producing a constant cool breeze which will be refreshing this warm weather.

—People who discover burglars in their houses are not required, under the law of Pennsylvania, to struggle with them, to warn them to depart, or make an outcry of any kind to get rid of them. All such scuondrels may be shot and killed, whenever thus found as intruders in a house, and the law will justify the act.

—In Kingston harbor the other day a shark was captured, and, on examination, his stomach was found to contain two straw hats, a cow's head, two hoofs and three horns, a large kerosene can, a basket and some sardine tins. When this story was told to a billy goat he fell in a swoon, after murmuring, "Farewell to all my greatness."

"THE PALACE BEAUTIFUL."

The Residence Erected by C M Bower, Esq., on East Linn Street.

A PERFECTLY PLANNED AND ATTRACTIVE HOME WHICH IS A VERITABLE BOWER OF BEAUTY.

On Monday evening we had the extreme pleasure of inspecting, inside and out, the beautiful residence erected by C M Bower, Esq., and we are lost in wonder at the house and its surroundings, which, although in existence only a few months, have that fully finished and mature appearance ordinarily attained after several years. The impression made on our minds is that some fairy has been at work and with the sway of a magic wand has given everything a thrifty and luxuriant growth. It was our first visit there this summer and our surprise was complete.

The exterior of the house is indeed charming. The material is of the best pressed brick and the architecture is artistic—a symphony in brick and stone, in angles and turrets, in fine lawn and tasteful ornamentation. The porches are just in the right place, the windows are so arranged as to contribute to the effect, and every touch of handiwork since has added to the pleasing effect.

The more we notice the arrangement of the interior the more perfect it seems. The entrance and the spacious hall are delightful; the stairway with its ornamental figure in bronze below, is so easy and gradual, so wide and inviting. The floors, covered with luxuriant and rich carpets and rugs are polished and smooth and elegant. The finishing of the woodwork in the apartments throughout the house represent all the beautiful specimens of wood which can be found in the forests of the world—mahogany, cherry, poplar, oak, sycamore, etc. Perhaps the door frame may be in oak finished as smooth as ivory and the door itself will be of poplar. It is difficult to know which to admire the most. The furniture in the rooms corresponds to the style in which the apartments are finished and is itself highly artistic. For instance, the lustrous mahogany of the bedsteads in the spare room is beautiful and when we saw the sycamore finish of the interior of the bureau in the same room it was indeed a picture of beauty in itself. The closet in which the clothing is kept is a spacious room and is in cedar. No moth can possibly enter the apartment. That conservatory at the west end is another bright gem. It must have been a happy thought to locate it there. The house is lighted by electricity and has every conceivable convenience.

All the apartments throughout the house are well finished and every room is so located as to be pleasant. Some of the rooms are illumined by a flood of light coming through many windows while others are equally bright, the light perhaps all flowing through a huge double window. The inside blinds in these windows are on an elegant plan in accordance with every other part of the dwelling. The view in all directions at once attracts and holds the eye. To the south it commands an extended view, taking in Pleasant Gap which seems only a half mile off, when really its distance is several miles. To the north all of Nittany valley greets the vision with its undulating meadow and farm land. South towards Milesburg, the famous gap between the hills is startlingly distinct. The water in the creek there is even more prominent than we have noticed it from any other point in the town, and away off in the hazy distance above rising peaks of the Allegheny mountains the highest ridge can be seen—so far away as to mingle its crest with the clouds or the blue sky. A portico projects out from the third floor from where all of Bellefonte is in the range of vision. Where all is in such excellent accord we cannot speak in detail of the residence. To detach any one part from the rest detracts from the effect. All must go together to depict its beauty, just as the parts of a great musical composition compose one sublime whole.

This is sumptuous and speaks of the care and taste of man, but, as we have remarked, it is inconceivable how the grounds have been brought to such a state of perfection almost in a flash. Where last season was sterile soil now is a conservatory of green sward and brilliant blossoms. Each one of the many geranium plants round the front of the house bears its wealth of flowers. Interspersed are many other plants and flowers, the names of which we know not. A passion vine clambers upward bravely and is bound to get there. There are countless varieties of sweet peas as fragrant as any flower that blooms and of matchlessly fine hues, all supported by frame work about the conservatory window and all in blossom. In the rear are rows of flowers of many varieties. The finest poppies are blooming there. Some of them are the California poppy which close at night and so we did not see them in their greatest beauty. It was nearly 8 o'clock—they had gone to sleep and so were only sleeping beauties. It is in vain that we attempt to enumerate the many sorts of blossoms in this collection. Daily hundreds of blossoms are plucked off, but the more luxuriantly do they bud and blossom. A rose garden contains sixty varieties, two-thirds of which were in blossom this season. But Mrs. Bower's success and taste in floral culture are widely known and here have their highest illustration. To show how spontaneously fruitful are all the growths in this yard there is a minute pear tree just placed in the ground which is putting all its energies into the production of a wonderful pear. This is the only growth in the garden which surprises Mr. Bower. Even he admitted that he had never before heard of such a thing. The large garden is full of the usual garden supplies which appear as thrifty and fine as if they were growing in a garden which had been carefully worked for years.

Surely Mr. and Mrs. Bower and their bright son, John, have just reason to be proud of this home which, in the taste displayed in its arrangement, is unsurpassed.

The Republican has always been the true exponent of republican principles. Every republican should have it. Its columns are pure and free from all evil. No man need hesitate to give it to his children to read. None of the vileness that is often published in other papers ever contaminates its columns. Such a paper should be in every family, and that this may result we offer it at the reduced price of $1.50 per year.

Prof. Wimpfheimer's Entertainment.

An appreciative audience listened to oratery and music in the Methodist church lecture room on Monday evening. Prof. Wm. G. Wimpfheimer was the talented young man who reproduced the oratory and humor of others in his recitations. His selections were choice, embracing a wide field of literature. His powers of expression and articulation are decided and carefully cultivated. He can imitate the manner and language of others with telling effect, and he is equally happy in depicting intense emotion and dramatic force. He has, compled with these acquirements, an attractive physical presence, and he is unmistakably a young man of much promise.

The choir of the church assisted. It is strong and excellent and all the renditions of Monday evening were of an especially happy character. Miss Stott sang a beautiful solo with fine effect. We are certainly not expressing more than the general verdict of the audience when we say that Miss Fannie Twitmire's rendering of a most beautiful solo was one of the best vocal efforts we have ever heard. Miss Twitmire has improved greatly since we last heard her, and she is now more than ever before a bright star in the galaxy of local vocalists.

Decision in the Teller Case Reserved Until After Trial.

The court called at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon to continue the action which was brought against Mr. Teller to show cause why his liquor license shall not be revoked. After some consultation between the judges, there being a full bench present, Judge Furst stated that a decision had been arrived at which might avert further proceedings. When the petition had been presented to him on July 8, defendent was bound over to court to answer to the charge of selling liquor to minors, etc., and other violations of that law. This action followed and did not precede the criminal action. It might be a question of expediency with the court to answer. The 12th day of July had been fixed for the hearing to get the evidence. The Court is unanimously of the opinion that, pending the trial, judgment should be withheld so that the case can go before a jury unprejudiced. Anything else would be wrong. Hence, the Court will not decide until the criminal prosecution be decided.

—The telegram on the first page of Monday's paper contained notice of the death of Gen. John Kilpatrick, of Erie, one of the most conspicuous figures in political circles in this State. He was a magnificent man, almost eight feet in height. He was also among the bravest of the brave and was a valliant soldier in the late war. Among his most patriotic deeds was taking a company of soldiers into the rebellion at his own expense. He was an uncle of Mrs. Hewes, wife of Charles P. Hewes, Esq., of this place.

We want all republicans to read their old paper the Bellefonte Republican and have therefore reduced the price to $1.50 to place it within reach of all.

Preparing for Gettysburg.

Harrisburg, July 29.—Adjutant Gen. Hastings, Colonel Nicholson and Colonel Keller met to-day and completed the preparation of blanks for the transportation of the Pennsylvania soldiers to Gettysburg on Pennsylvania Day. On application these blanks will be distributed to the regimental associations and by them given out to all who are entitled to them.

—Ruffalo Run Railroad Company, lend us your ears just a minute. Please erect a station building at Waddle's station. Some structure to shelter the travelers is all that is wanted and will be mutually beneficial.

—The primary meetings for Spring township will be held at the Commissioners' office on Saturday afternoon between the hours of two and five o'clock p. m. Matthew F. Riddle, Chairman.

THE FISHING PARTY.

Described in Verse by our Snow Shoe Correspondent—Other News, Both Serious and Gay, from Snow Shoe.

We gathered up the grub
In basket, bag and tub
And quickly for the river made a strike,
For it was a jolly crowd
Who with happy voices loud
Sweetly sang while riding out the pike.

We saw Cook's little fence,
Well now it was immense—
'Twas very nicely built upon a wall,
We passed Doc. Stewart's mill
And went down an awful hill
And drove through weed and bushes thick and tall

Then we halted in a canon
At the mouth of the Moshannon
Where the sumach and the alder reign supreme
Like a father meets his daughter,
Is Moshannon's murky water
Met and welcomed by the larger, noble stream

About thirty people stood
On the bank with anxious mood
As they cast the hook and line with ardent wish
But it was a sorry sight
For they could not get a bite
And it seemed as if they couldn't catch a fish.

When just a moment later
Haupt caught an alligator
While reclining on the lap of Bertha Shank,
And then it came to pass
Dr. Neff caught a bass
While Lena almost fainted on the bank.

And thus saith Mr. Meoney—
Ed and Lena they got spooney,
For he saw them by the river side by side;
And he heard the young man say:
"Lena won't you name the day?
O, my darling, tell me won't you be my bride?"

Then he thought he heard her whisper:
"I'll be te you a sister.
Now, young man, don't suicide nor take my life.
I am promised to another;
You can be to me a brother,
And many a girl as good as me will be your wife.

On the ground we took a seat,
Of the good things we did eat,
Cakes and pies and every kind of meat.
All were hungry it is clear,
How the good things disappear!
But the ladies had to smile at Jimmy's feet.

Joseph Hartzell, nothing loth,
Sat beside the Widow Roth,
And to make himself agreeable he tried.
Nearly everybody smiled,
Thus to see them reconciled,
And the widow seemed to be well satisfied.

T. B. B., who keeps a store,
Swam across from shore to shore,
As many a man had often done before:
But he nearly broke his shin,
On a stump he swam agin—
And we don't think he will swim there anymore

Then the gallant Doctor Jim
Taught the ladies how to swim—
Such a happy jolly crowd you never saw.
In a boat they had a tussle—
One young lady lost her bustle,
And another got neuralgia in her jaw.

Miss Stella N Jan, who has been visiting friends and attending school at Atchison, Kansas, for about ten months, has returned home again.

Miss Florence Campbell, aged eleven, died at about twelve o'clock last Thursday and was buried in the Askey graveyard Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Amos Lucas, of Philipsburg, visited her Snow Shoe friends last week. Of course, she enjoyed herself and had a good time.

Mr. Geo. Ray, who kneads nothing but dough at Alfred Thompson's bakery, left on Friday morning for a two weeks visit among friends in Williamsport and Milton.

D. G. Davis, accompanied by his three sons—Bruce, Walter and William—left for Punxsutawney on Friday morning where they expect to dig for the dusky diamonds.

Mrs. H. H. Van Dyke, of Lock Haven, and Mrs. H. B. Knauf, of Montandon, are guests at the Mountain House.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Rankin and family drove out to Snow Shoe on Saturday and spent Sunday at the Mountain House. Mrs. Rankin was formerly a Miss Adda Bailey, of Williamsport, and still later of Bellefonte.

Miss Christina Motherwill, of Punxsutawney, after spending several weeks very pleasantly with Snow Shoe friends, left for home last Friday morning.

Miss Bizzie Roth, organist at the M. E. church, left on Friday morning to visit friends at Northumberland, Pa.

Samuel Shank and wife, of Marsh Creek, a very pleasant old couple who have passed the three score and ten years and yet seems hale and hearty, are visiting their relatives at Snow Shoe.

Mr. R. H. Green, adjuster for the Beech Creek railroad, spent Monday in Snow Shoe transacting business for the company he represents.

A little son of J. J. Lucas was terribly bitten in the face by Mr. Lucas' own dog last Tuesday. The dog was immediately killed.

Mr. Jack Cherry, of Karthaus, formerly of Snow Shoe, visited his Snow Shoe friends last week.

Haupt Leathers, of Mount Eagle, visited Snow Shoe last Tuesday and took in the fishing party on Wednesday. The poet says he caught an alligator.

J. S. Ewing, our popular druggist, sold his pool table last Wednesday to J. S. McGarger, of Tyrone.

The two Mrs. McCann, of Tyrone, are visiting Mrs. Thomas McCann, of Snow Shoe.

Two papers for the price of one—the Republican and Phil's Press, $1.50 per year in advance.

—Camp Potter is now fairly opened. Of all the camps which are springing up so numerously, lasting a week or ten days and then ending, this camp promises to be among the most enjoyable. It is located in Hunter's woods, on the Buffalo Run railroad. There, at the present time, are assembled James Potter and family, Mrs. J. W. Gephart and family, Mrs. Edmund Blanchard with her interesting children; and last, but not least Miss Lilly Russell, of Danville, Pa.

Personal Pencilings.

Miss Emma Hughes is sojourning at Cape May.

Mrs. W. F. Reber is now a guest at Bedford Springs.

Misses Jennie and Annie Stott, of this place are visiting, friends in Reading.

Prof. J. Milton Furey, of Lock Haven, is confined to his house by illness.

Profs. David M. Lieb and D. O. Etters go this week to the mountains for recreation.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Montgomery departed on Thursday for a visit at Atlantic City.

Miss Thomas, of Baltimore, is now the guest of Evan Blanchard, Esq., and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Heylmun have returned home from a visit to Crescent, Lycoming county.

Mrs. Reber and Mrs. Mullen came home from Bedford on the fast line on Thursday.

Hon. T P Rynder, State Chairman of the Greenback party, visited Philipsburg last week.

Mrs. Mullen, of Clearfield, is visiting her daughter Mrs. Benner Graham, of this place.

Mrs. Stewart Pierce, and little son of Philadelphia, are visiting relatives in Bellefonte.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bower and their son, John, departed to-day for a trip to the country.

We notice that Israel Sternberg of Washington, D. C., is now visiting his friends here.

Rt. Rev. Bishop N. S. Rulison will visit the Episcopal parish here on Monday, September 2.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rankin and family went to Snow Shoe on Saturday to spend a few days.

Mr. Charles McCafferty, who has been in Washington, D. C., the past month, returned home on Saturday.

Rev. Geo. Elliott, of Unionville, is about to depart for a months visit with friends in Hagerstown, Maryland.

Rev. Dr. Hamill, of Oak Hall Station, evidently in excellent health, was an arrival in Bellefonte this morning.

Mrs. Frank Cessna, and family who has been visiting relatives, at Bedford Spring, returned home on Saturday.

Miss Katherine Kinzer, of New Holland, Pa., is the guest of Miss Ida Gerberich, daughter of Mr. C. T. Gerberich.

Bellefonte was just like the State Capital on Saturday, Governor Beaver, Gen. Hastings and even Colonel Spangler being here.

Mr. George W. Hillibish went on Saturday to Buffalo, New York, to visit his sister, Mrs. Captain Cheeseman, who is very ill.

Miss Maggie Rodgers, one of the bright and obliging Telephone Exchange young ladies, has returned after quite a long absence.

Paul Fortney, a son of D. F. Fortney, Esq., has been very ill for several days past. He is a bright lad and we hope to hear of a speedy rally from his illness.

Rev. A L Miller, Altoona's talented and youthful divine, came to Bellefonte on Monday and his friends here (especially one) were more than pleased to see him.

Mr. John Bair and family will leave on Thursday for a visit at his former home in Pottstown. Mr. Bair has not yet made any arrangements to engage in business.

Miss Kittie Martin, an accomplished young lady from Washington, D. C., is now the guest of Miss Lydia Harris, daughter of Henry P. Harris, Esq., East Howard street.

Mr. Daniel Garman has been making his usual visit to Bedford Springs. He has with him an elegant team of horses and carriage and is enjoying that delightful retreat to its fullest extent.

Mr. L. A. Schaeffer has been away from home for a day or two. He don't like to leave his garden for it is a good one, but the Gardiner (Mitchell I. from Howard) is making himself so numerous throughout the county that Lew went out to see what the effect will be.

The Misses Candor and Blackburn, of Lock Haven, who, while guests of the Misses Garman here, completely pulverized any number of Bellefonte beaux, departed on Wednesday evening for their home, and now there is a lonesome look on the countenances of those who basked in the light of their presence.

Mr. J. L. Butts, son of Mr. D. M. Butts, is now at home. During the past three months Mr. Butts has been journeying all through the Western Hemisphere going northward through British Columbia, then south to Chili, thence north across the isthmus and now is at home. In consequence of these extensive travels Lawrence has some very entertaining accounts to narrate of America as it is.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

That fact and Other Notes by a Valued Correspondent.

Pine Glen, Centre Co., Pa., July 27, 1889.

Mr. Editor: Please insert a few items from the quiet little village of German Settlement.

The people of German Settlement are naturally thrifty and industrious.

They organized a Sabbath school June 21st. They have not had a Sabbath school at that place for several years. Mr James Frye is taking an active part, and by his earnest efforts, with the assistance of others, means to have an interesting and successful school. Mr. John Hipple was elected to some important office in the school. Now, John, dont shrirk your duty, but do your best.

Rev. Bedford, of the M. E. church, preached at the Settlement on Sunday July 21st, taking for his subject, "The Lord's Prayer." Rev. Diel, of the Lutherchurch, also preached the same day. There were large and attentive congregations at both services.

Mr. Hoover from Unionville, has a large saw mill and store near the Settlement and is doing a good business. Master Ren always has a smile for everybody who enters the store.

Mr. Houser's estimable wife has come, we are told, to stay at the boarding house for some time.

We notice that German Settlement is coming out "ahead."

Pine Glen Items.

Mr. Joseph Yothers and Mr. Martin Vaghdorfer are through harvesting.

We noticed Mr. O. H. Holt trying to mow the pike one day last week.

Mr. G. R. Boak has gone on a fishing expedition.

Miss Blanche Cook from Bellefonte was visiting at this place a few days ago. She was playing in the yard, when a small dog owned by her uncle George inflicted a severe wound by biting her. She had to be taken home.

Miss Annie Beates returned home last Friday. After school closed at West Chester she visited friends.

Mr. A. Daugherty and Mr. H. Barger are making quite an improvement to Pine Glenn school house.

Why is Mr. Lot Creamer the happiest man in Pine Glenn. Because two strangers came to his house last week and they came to stay—a boy and a girl.

Miss Clara Mulhollan is going to Bellefonte this week.

Nearly all our young men are working at Mr. Smith's camp. Consequently, we never get to see them unless there is church service in the evening.

Rev. Bedford preached to the children Saturday afternoon, July 27, in the M. E. church. In the evening all were invited and many were present. He told how one sin leads to another and how we can be influenced by evil surroundings. He used a beautiful drawing to illustrate his sermon. The drawing was the work of Mr. Miller, of this place and is creditable. People who failed to hear that sermon lost a great deal. Communion services were held in the M. E. church Sunday morning.

From another correspondent.

Rev. Bedford preached an eloquent sermon in the M. E. church at Pine Glenn on Saturday night.

Rev. Ebersole also delivered an excellent discourse in the Messiah church at Pine Glenn Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

A fishing party was organized by some of the skilled lady and gentlemen fishers of Snow Shoe and they came out in the vicinitp of Pine Glenn. There in the waters of Moshannon creek and the Susquehanna river they plied their art all of Wednesday. They were a happy crowd, thirty-two in all. It is hoped by some of the anglers at Pine Glenn that the crowd will not come again soon, for they think it will be no use to fish in either of the streams of water for some time to come.

—Adjutant General Hastings' report for 1888 will soon be issued. From the advance sheets it appears that the Sheridan Troop leads all the cavalry and artillery of the State with a percentage of 57.25, being ahead of the City Troop of Philadelphia about eleven per cent. The Eighth regiment leads the infantry with the percentage of 75.91 per cent. Fifth regiment is second with 755 per cent. This is a flattering showing for our section of the State.

—An excursion party over the Beech Creek railroad to Moselle Park near Snow Shoe is being arranged under the auspices of the Young People's Union of the English Lutheran church, of Lock Haven. The excursion party will leave Lock Haven Thursday morning, August 8, and return on the evening of that day. Moselle Park is one and a half mile from Snow Shoe.

Just Out—'Robin's Farewell,' Caprice for Piano, by Fisher. Brilliant, not difficult, and easy to commit to memory. A capital piece for young progressive pianists. Mailed on receipt of 50cts. in 2-ct. postage stamps, by any music dealer, or Ign. Fisher, the publisher, Toledo, O.

MARRIED.

WOLF—CROSSON.—At the office of D. H. Bean, J. P., by that official, on July 23, 1889, Mr. George Wolf and Mrs. Mary Crosson, both of Taylor township.
